JEFFERSON CITY.

What the Legislative Solons are Doing.

Reduction of the State Debt—Lack of Confidence in the Administration.

Special from Our Staff Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 1.—The Republicans of the Senate passed the afternoon today in strenuous efforts at filibustering. The Redistricting Committee reported back to the Senate the bill of Senator Heaston, with amendments corresponding with the caucus bill. Immediately after reading the report, Senator Jacobs, of Chillicothe, obtained the floor and declared that he, as a member of the committee, was called into a meeting of the Committee on Redistricting only five minutes before, when the bill was hurriedly read and dragged into the Senate. He therefore moved the bill be printed and recommitted. Senator Rogers made a sarcastic address, referring to the Democratic caucus as "the charmed circle." Senator Allen followed this up with a general blow at the haste with which the redistricting had been performed, and the necessity of more accurate information in regard to what the Senate was really doing. The eloquent Senators, however, were whistling up the wind.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE

that reported the representative apportionment bill made a curious mistake. In their calculations on the new census they cheated themselves out of four Democratic members of the Legislature. The ludicrous error was kept very quiet and only a few members of the charmed circle understood why Sam Major moved to have the bill recommitted this afternoon, and at first there were evidences of Democratic opposition to the recommittal, but the Stalwarts slipped about from place to place and suppressed the opposition by declaring the real facts.

THE GENERAL LACK OF CONFIDENCE

in the strength of the administration received ample illustration this afternoon in a little episode that occurred in the House. The Committee on Ways and Means reported an appropriation bill providing for the mileage per diem and expenses of the called session of the General Assembly, but tacked on to the same bill an appropriation of $1,000 for expenses incurred by the State in the litigation with the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad Company. When the bill was read M. J. McGlinness made the point of order that it was not a general appropriation bill, and as the two different appropriations were asked for by separate messages of the Governor, they should be reported as two bills and considered separately. Anticipating a movement of this kind, the Speaker moved around among the members, leaving the pro tem. Speaker in the chair, while the Governor's private secretary passed about among his friends, conversing on the weather and kindred topics. Of course the bill went to its first reading, objections to the contrary.

STATE AUDITOR WALKER

declared to-day that the collections of revenue have been nearer complete than at any period during the last ten years, resulting from more efficient county officers and a more thorough system of making collections and returns. The clerks and collectors are now required to make monthly returns and statements to the Auditor. The Fund Commissioners have already called in the $250,000 of bonds annually required by the Constitution and will probably be able to call in another $250,000 in July, making a reduction of half a million dollars in the State debt this year. The Auditor says the Commissioners will be enabled to make this second call of bonds by reason of the fact that the semi-annual interest heretofore required to be paid on the school certificates of $2,000,000 is now payable in January, thus giving the financial officers nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The finances of the State are alleged to be in excellent condition, but they could scarcely be otherwise with the present large revenue and the rapid reduction of the debt heretofore made.

NOTES.

The expenses attendant on the called session of the Legislature have thus far reached $27,165.

Wells H Blodgett, attorney of the Missouri Pacific, is in the city, presumably in attendance on the Supreme Court.

The three thousand point billiard match between Benedict, the St. Louis amateur, and Lon Morris, the professional of New York, commenced at Mussey's yesterday afternoon. The first day's score was as follows: Morris, 600; Benedict, 405.

The Bar Association last evening discussed and adopted a resolution offered by Judge Valliant to prevent admission to the St. Louis bar in all cases where the applicant has not passed the examination of the Circuit Court, Court of Appeals or Supreme Court.

Chase & Cabot, wholesale dry goods merchants, have issued a circular to their trade announcing their intention to close out. The stock is to be offered at cost for cash and all liabilities are to be met. Illness of two partners has been assigned as the cause.

The Sabbath observance crusade was discussed yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Doctor Ganse spoke of the movement as "predestinated failure." It lacked the hearty support of the Evangelical Alliance. Dr. Niccolls was placed on the committee in lieu of Dr. Ganse. Chancellor Eliot suggested prosecution of the leading saloons.

The Tally Ho Coaching Club directors met last night at the Southern. W. R. Allen, Pierce Chouteau, S. M. Dodd, E. S. Douglass, Joseph Franklin, Chas. Green, Edwin Harrison, Deios R. Haynes, E. A. Hitchcock, Clement M. Sesmar, J. B. C. Lucas, Jesse L. January and Julius S. Walsh were present. Every confidence was expressed in the enterprise.

IT'S A COLD DAY,

And the Gambling Ring are Badly Left.

Circuit Attorney Harris on Top as Usual.

The Laughlin Decision to go Before the Supreme Court,

In Spite of the World, the Flesh and the Devil.

A Peremptory Mandamus Demanded for the Criminal Judge.

Exciting Times in Court This Morning.

The Gambling Ring in a State of Complete Consternation.

If a bombshell had been exploded in the Criminal Court this morning it could hardly have excited more surprise and really more consternation than Mr. Harris' notification that he was about to apply to the Supreme Court of the State for a writ of peremptory mandamus to compel Judge Laughlin to hear the gambling and lottery cases. The attorneys of the ring had imagined that the whole course of justice was so clogged that it would be impossible for the cases ever to be brought to trial. It was admitted by the best attorneys of the city that unquestionably the State had no right of appeal to a higher court upon a question of jurisdiction. With much acumen Judge Laughlin's ruling had been brought into just such a shape that it was a question of jurisdiction, and the attorneys of the ring were felicitating themselves on the fact that the gambling law had been entirely overturned while no remedy was left in the hands of the lovers of law and order. Judge Laughlin had ordered the cases into the Court of Criminal Correction. The defendants were indicted for felony, and hence any decision of Judge Cady in the cases would be laughed at in the Court of Appeals. As it turned out, the very weakness of the State was turned into its strength by upon the very stronghold of the gamblers' position. The State has no right to appeal, but they have the right to ask for a mandamus, and under the circumstances the Supreme Court, it is generally conceded, must grant it.

The Criminal Court was crowded with attorneys and gentlemen connected with the defendant interest in the gambling and lottery cases, and from Judge Laughlin down it was evident that Mr. Harris' notification was a surprise, and a surprise by no means of a pleasant character. Everybody crowded up about Mr. Harris while he was speaking, and even the Sheriff in the general interest neglected to suppress the whispered astonishment which passed from man to man.

TO-DAY'S COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Circuit Attorney Harris and Deputy Clerk Ben. Furney, of the Criminal Court, walked into the Court of Criminal Correction this morning a few minutes after the Sheriff announced that tribunal ready for the transaction of business, and, handing a certified copy of one of the gambling cases over to Deputy-Clerk Fitzgerald, asked that it be filed. The clerk informed

JUDGE CADY, WHO SAID:

"The indictments in these cases charge a felony, while this court has only jurisdiction to finally try misdemeanors. If convictions were had all that would be necessary would be to take the case to the Court of Appeals and ask to set aside the judgment. In this the defendants would certainly be sustained. This would only be a perversion of justice, and I will not allow any of these cases to be filed until I have time to examine this matter. The indictments were accordingly carried back to the Criminal Court, from which Judge Laughlin, in his decision yesterday, ordered them to be taken to the Court of Criminal Correction. A few minutes later Judge Laughlin emerged from his private door and opened court.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY HARRIS

issued from his office, and, approaching the bar, said: "I desire to file a motion to vacate the order of yesterday. The Court of Criminal Correction refuses to allow the cases which your Honor has decided you have no jurisdiction to try, and we now have 702 cases with no tribunal to dispose of them. To overcome this difficulty I ask to file this motion." Mr. Harris then read the following motion, which explains the sad condition of things:

In the St. Louis Criminal Court, May term, 1882.—State of Missouri, plaintiff, vs. Robert C. Pate et al., defendants.

And now comes the Circuit Attorney and moves the court to vacate and set aside the order heretofore entered, to wit: "Monday, May 1, 1882. This day the court sustains the plea to the jurisdiction in each and all of these cases, and it appearing to the court that the offenses charged in said indictments are misdemeanors, and the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction having exclusive jurisdiction of such cases, it is ordered that each and all of said indictments be certified and transmitted to the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction for trial," and said Circuit Attorney further moves said court to order said cause to be retained in its place for trial on the docket of this court and to proceed with said cause as now set on this day, and for reason said attorney assigns.

1. The charge against the defendants as set forth in the indictment herein is a felony under the laws of the State of Missouri, and the Criminal Court of the City of St. Louis has exclusive jurisdiction to entertain and try said defendants upon said indictment and charge.

2. That the order heretofore made and above recited is void and contrary to law.

3. Because the Court of Criminal Correction has no jurisdiction to try said cause, and a trial or any order pending in said cause would be illegal.

4. That it is provided by law upon the Criminal [illegible] the City of St. Louis to entertain and retain jurisdiction of said cause and proceed to a trial and disposition thereof on its merits, and that no other court has jurisdiction for this purpose.

5. That the Court of Criminal Correction has refused to recognize said order transferring said causes and refuses to allow the same or any causes of similar character to be transferred under said order and filed by the clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction therein, and refuses in any manner to assume jurisdiction of said causes attempted to be so transferred by said order.

6. Because unless the said order is vacated and set aside said causes cannot be brought to trial, and the ends of justice will be thereby defeated. JOS. R. HARRIS, Circuit Attorney.

JUDGE LAUGHLIN SAID:

"It is the duty of the Circuit Attorney to acquiesce in this decision until overturned. I am ready, however, to put the case in such a shape as to have it tested at once, but I do not think your effort will accomplish this. Prohibition or mandamus I do not think will reach this."

Mr. Harris—The only thing your Honor can consistently do is to overrule the motions and refuse to allow the cases to go to trial in this court, I will apply for a mandamus to the Supreme Court, and have already telegraphed to Jefferson City to ascertain when that court will be in session. My object is to show that this court is obliged to try the cases. If the Supreme Court sustains this court, the Court of Criminal Correction will be obliged to take the cases. The Criminal Court refuses to try the cases under its present conviction, while the Court of Criminal Correction claims no constitutional jurisdiction. This motion was filed in the utmost good faith, its object being to bring the matter before a court whose judgment is final.

Mr. Patrick—I suppose, your Honor, I will be permitted to appear and sustain the views of your Honor's decision.

Judge Laughlin—I don't know whether the Supreme Court will or not. I am taking no position before that court.

Mr. Harris—I think the best way would be to allow the motion to be filed and overruled.

Judge Laughlin—Very well, then; let that be the entry.

Mr. Harris—I will now ask permission to file a similar motion in the case of Lehndorf, one of the defendants to a charge of establishing a lottery. The decision of your Honor of course affects this just as it does the gambling law.

The same disposition was made of this as of the motion in the gambling cases, and the group of lawyers who crowded about the bar to see the newest moves disbanded, while the court resumed the routine business of the day.

The Mandamus.

Almost as soon as the proceedings in court were over, a messenger carried a telegram into the office of Mr. Harris. It was from Mr. Ewing, clerk of the Supreme Court, and announced that the court would sit to-morrow, Wednesday, May 5, and adjourn. Of course if the mandamus was to be procured at all it must be done at once, and accordingly the whole force of the Circuit Attorney's office, including several volunteers, went to work to get the papers ready to go out on the evening train to-night to the State Capital. The work to be done is simply tremendous, but it will be finished in time and the whole case be presented to the Supreme Court at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. Mr. Harris will himself go up and so will Mr. Bliss, and probably several other counsel. Mr. Patrick and one or two other gentlemen will go up to contest the application.

The Circuit Attorney.

Mr. Harris was looking tired and worn out, but triumphant, when a reporter penetrated his office this morning and asked him to explain the application for mandamus.

"You must understand," said he, "that the defense believed that this decision of Judge Laughlin entirely tied our hands, and that the gambling cases were settled completely. You understand that upon a plea of jurisdiction there is no appeal from the decision of the court. It was said that there was no way to have Judge Laughlin's decision reviewed. Well, we shall see."

"What did you do?"

"There were difficulties about a mandamus proceeding which I had to go over, but late last night I had determined on my line of action. We took the cases in accordance with Judge Laughlin's ruling into Judge Cady's Court, and very properly he declined to permit his clerk to receive the cases at all on the ground that he had no jurisdiction in cases of felony, which these cases appeared to him to be. Now we were in this position: We had cases to try and we had no court to try them in. The State was unable to obtain a trial in either court until the validity of the order entered by Judge Laughlin had been adjudicated upon by a higher court. The motion passed upon by Judge Laughlin and the order entered were of a preliminary character to the trial of the case upon its merits. The State and the defendant being without the ability to obtain trial and without legal remedy in the premises, I am satisfied that the mandamus would lie to compel the Criminal Court to proceed to the trial of these cases. Or the Supreme Court may deny the peremptory writ of mandamus against the Judge on the ground that the lottery and gambling laws are void and his order valid. In a word, I want the question adjudicated by the Supreme Court, so that the chaotic state into which matters have fallen here may be ended."

"You are going up to the Supreme Court at once?"

"Just as soon as the papers can be fixed up in the case, and we are working upon them as hard as we can. I shall make the motion in the Supreme Court to-morrow."

"Do you believe the Supreme Court will grant the writ?"

"I certainly think it will."

The State had provided another scheme in the event that the cases were accepted by Judge Cady, in which instance they would have been appealed at once into the Court of Appeals, skipping the Criminal Court, and so on up. In either dilemma the Circuit Attorney was fully prepared for the ring.

Mr. Joseph G. Lodge.

Mr. Joseph G. Lodge was asked what he thought about the mandamus proceeding. "It is the neatest thing Mr. Harris has done since his entry into the office. You must understand that when a court decides a preliminary question so that it will prevent a hearing of the case on its merits no appeal can be taken. That is certainly the law. But I am satisfied that the aggrieved party can go to a superior court and there get a writ of mandamus, if upon due inquiry the court is satisfied that the court below has made a mistake. The fact that the State cannot appeal is one of the strong points in its case. It was apparently an element of weakness, but really it is an element of strength. In the manner in which the defense has succeeded in closing the case it has left a fatal opening. Mr. Harris will not now have to reach the court by a collateral proceeding, but will strike at it directly."

Mr. Patrick.

Said Mr. Patrick to a POST-DISPATCH reporter: "Certainly we shall resist the application for a mandamus in the Supreme Court—that goes without saying. I cannot, of course, tell you just what ground we shall take at this time, but certainly I fail to see on what ground the Supreme Court can grant a mandamus." "The question of the constitutionality of the law will then be brought up in the Supreme Court?"

"That seems to be Mr. Harris' intention."

"Then this mandamus proceeding is really equivalent to an appeal?"

"It will have very much that effect if the State can induce the Supreme Court to listen to its petition."

"And do you think the court will listen to the State?"

"Yes, I must say that I believe it will."

Chief Kennett.

Chief Kennett was seen at noon to-day. Three faro rooms were running last night while a $300 bunko trick was turned yesterday and reported to the police.

"Well, this is not in the police department" said the Chief.

"I suppose the cases will have to go the Court of Criminal Correction, but I learn that Judge Cady has refused to allow them to be filed and the police will finally be obliged to make new cases. The police will continue to make cases right straight along. We can always rely on the police courts, for there no great talent or plea to jurisdiction is necessary."

Judge Laughlin.

No man in the court was more surprised at Mr. Harris' notice than Judge Laughlin. A POST-DISPATCH reporter attempted to interview the Judge, but was met with a most curt and final refusal. No persuasion could induce His Honor to answer any question concerning either his ruling of yesterday or Mr. Harris' proceeding of to-day. Judge Laughlin is not looking at all well, and he seemed to be to-day particularly anxious and worried.

THE STATE SOLONS.

Republican Filibustering—Proceedings in the Legislature To-Day—Notes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 2.

The House met this morning at 9 o'clock and it was expected that interesting proceedings would be developed from the caucuses of last night. The redestricting bill of the minority was read and a motion to print defeated. Immediately thereafter Mr. Major moved to take recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon, and the House was not in session over fifteen minutes.

IN THE SENATE

the amendments of the Redistricting Committee to Senator Heaston's bill were read. Senator Manistre moved to amend amendments with the redistricting bill adopted by the Republican caucus, but the amendment was lost.

Senator Rogers moved to take Iron, Reynolds and Perry from the Tenth District and add to the Fourteenth. He said the Tenth had a population or 184,000 and the Fourteenth District 139,000, and his motion was to [illegible] the ratio. This amendment was lost.

Senator Jacobs moved to take Monroe county from the Second District and add Putnam county, which was also defeated.

Senator Heaston made a humorous speech in reply to the Republican filibusters, and created a vast deal of merriment by displaying copies of Die Laterne containing the Stalwart idea of gerrymandering. The bill adopted by the City of St. Louis, because he did not know in which ward Broadhead lived and had no personal interest whatever in transferring the Nineteenth Ward to the old Second District.

Ex-Gov. Campbell thinks the decision of Judge Laughlin correct so far as its legal propositions and aspect are concerned.

IN THE SUPREME COURT

this morning the call of the docket was resumed. Only one case from St. Louis was acted upon that being Dunn vs. Miller from the Court of Appeals in which the court denied a motion to amend remanding order.

The women were bound and gagged, and one of them was strung up to the rafters in order to extort information in regard to where their money was secreted. Mary, the young daughter, was brutally beaten, but all refused to give the information. The burglars got about $300 and escaped.

Assignment.

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 2.—Wheat & Durff, wholesale grocers, have assigned.

The firm has just issued circulars in which they say "The great difficulty in making collections and the large amount of bad debts developing in the last few months, in our business, resulting largely from the terrible drought of last year and the overflow of the winter and spring, have made it impossible for us to meet our liabilities as they fall due, and in order to secure equal protection to all our creditors we have this day made an assignment to Capt. John. H. Leathers, of this city. We cannot express our great pain and disappointment that this course has become necessary, a proceeding which, until very recently, had been entirely unexpected by us, and we beg to assure our friends that it is the result entirely of losses in the legitimate trade or of business too much extended for our capital in the present unfavorable state of commercial affairs, and not in any way arising from speculation."

Lapsed Railroad Grants.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The House Committee on Judiciary, at a full meeting this morning, held under consideration the subject of lapsed railroad grants. The sentiment of the committee was fully expressed to the effect that reports upon certain roads whose business is being effected by the delay should be made at once. Members of the committee are reticent as to what their action will be, or what roads will be first acted upon. The Northern Pacific and Atlantic and Pacific are in the hands of a sub-committee and the friends of these roads are confidently expecting an early and favorable report.

The Worthington Vote.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The vote in the Senate Committee on Commerce to-day on the nomination of Worthington for Collector of Customs of Boston was as follows: For confirmation—Messrs. McMillan, Conger and Jones, of Nevada, Republicans; Farley and Vest, Democrats. Against confirmation—Messrs. Miller of New York and Kellogg, Republicans; Coke and Vest, Democrats. It is said Kellogg voted no to oblige Senator Hoar, because of favors and assistance rendered him by Hoar when his (Kellogg's) seat was contested.

Army Retirement.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The Military Committee will hold a special meeting to-morrow to consider the bill for the compulsory retirement of army officers over sixty-two years of age. Will Be Reported Favorably.

The Senate Committee on Commerce, by a vote of 5 to 4, declined to report favorably the nomination of Worthington as Collector of Customs at Boston.

Mr. Hatch explained the necessity for the building and the bill passed, 123 to 53.

Fears are felt for the safety of Fort Huachuca. The families of Capt. Tupper, Dave Haskel and four others are there and only a few men to guard the post. Volunteers are organizing.

BELIEVED TO BE OVER.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—At the Indian Bureau here the belief is that the Indian troubles in Arizona are over for the present. Officers of the Bureau say the band of Indians which did all the mischief numbered about 400 all told; but they were making their way into Mexico and will probably get into that country now before the troops can catch them.

These troops include the entire Third Cavalry and several companies from the Fourth and Sixth Infantry. It is understood the First Infantry has been ordered up from Texas and the Seventh Infantry down from Minnesota.

England.

LONDON, May 2.—The Times states it will be formally decided to-day whether the suspects will be liberated. The correspondence between Great Britain and the United States relative to the suspects will show there has been no weak acknowledgment of pretensions inconsistent with intergational law and common sense. Great Britain has firmly maintained the position that American Irishman in Ireland must submit like other Irishmen to the laws deemed necessary by Parliament. It is in deference to the comity of nations, not to any claim of right, that prisoners of American nationality were offered their liberty if they would leave the country. If some of them foolishly and insolently refuse to give such a pledge they must take the chance of remaining in jail as long as the executive deems necessary. It is, however, no longer doubtful that the Cabinet is considering whether the prisoners may not be liberated, except those arrested on suspicion of being personally concerned in outrages.

FAILED TO AGREE.

LONDON, May 2.—The Council having failed to agree upon a new Irish programme, will have a second meeting. The Radical minority insist on the instant release of the suspects.

Railroad Reorganization.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 2.—The reorganization of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad yesterday by the election of R. R. Cable, of the Chicago and Rock Island, as President of the new Board of Directors, with H. A. Porter, President of the C., S. T. P., M. & O., at the head, involves close relations between the Rock Island and Omaha companies, but not the consolidation, nor rupture of the existing relations between the Omaha company and Chicago and Northwestern. It is understood that Mr. Hudson, the present General Manager of the M. & St. L., will remain in the same position, while A. B. Stickney, as Vice-President, with headquarters at St. Paul, will be the practical head. While the price paid for the stock is not known, a retiring director states it was an advance upon the price received by C. C. Washburn for his stock a year ago. The real cause for the sale of the road is undoubtedly that the management found themselves unable to meet their financial engagements. Work upon the extension and feeders will be resumed at once, and the main line will be steeled the present season.

It Took the Prize.

The Compton Litho. Co. have made a large show-card for the great tobacco firm of C. A. Jackson & Co., Petersburg, Va., that is pronounced by all who have seen it to be the very best that has ever been issued.

A copy of this splendid work of art has been placed on exhibition in the show-window of Steinberg, the Hatter, No. 303 Fourth street.

It is gratifying to know that we have in St. Louis an establishment that can successfully compete with the leading houses in the country for this work was taken in sharp competition with the principal Eastern lithographers, and an order for $150,000 copies secured by the pre-eminent superiority of the design and the execution of the work submitted by the Compton Litho. Co., of this city.

As all will have an opportunity to see it at Steinberg's, a description of it is unnecessary.

If Jackson's "Spring Plug Tobacco" is as good as the piece represented on the show-card, it is surely destined to be the leading brand and verify Compton's elegant design.

The Court of Appeals to-day dismissed the appeal asked in behalf of John D. Shea, the murderer of Officer Doran. He had been refused a change of venue by Judge Lindley. The court decides that no appeal lies in such a case.

In the United States Circuit Court to-day Judge Treat heard argument and evidence on a plea to jurisdiction set up in the case of the widow Lucy Eddy's damage suit against the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. The lady alleged that she was a resident of East St. Louis, while the railroad company claims that she resides in Sedalia.

The Court of Appeals to-day rendered the following batch of decisions: Rude vs. Harvey et al., reversed and remanded; Durnin vs. Waddingham, reversed and judgment; Strathman vs. Gorla, affirmed; Pearce vs. Spalding, affirmed; Merchants' Insurance Company vs. Excelsior Insurance Company, affirmed; Wehrman vs. Priest, reversed and remanded. "THE LORD'S HONEST TRUTH."

He Only Wanted to See His Girl and the Judge Discharged Him.

Dan O'Leary was arrested last night for drunkenness and disturbance of the peace. The complaint was made by J. W. Hawley, proprietor of the Everett House, 308 North Fourth street, where O'Leary was employed as a yardman. Last night he got too much bock beer on board and went into the hotel to see his girl, who is employed as a chambermaid. The boss fired him out. This morning when called on for his statement in the First District Police Court, O'Leary hemmed once or twice, and, in a serious tone of voice, thus addressed the court: "Now, your Honor, what I am about to say is the Lord's honest truth. I hope I may die on this spot if what I am going to say is not the Lord's honest truth." The court told him to proceed with his statement. "Now, your Honor, what I am about to say is the Lord's honest truth. I hope I may die on this exact spot if what I am going to say is not the Lord's honest truth."

This was the extent of his statement. As he appeared to be an innocent sort of fellow, and only wanted to see his girl, his Honor dismissed the case with costs.

THE LOTUS.

Love came to Flora asking for a flower,
That would of flowers be undisputed queen,
The lily and the rose long, long had been Rivals for that high honor. Bards of power
Had sung their claims: "The rose can never tower
Like the pale lily with her Juno mien."
"But is the lily lovelier?" Thus between Flower factions rang the strife in Psyche's bower.
"Give me a flower delicious as the rose,
And stately as the lily in her pride."
"But of what color?" "Rose-red," Love first chose.
Then prayed: "No, lily-white, or both provide."
And Flora gave the lotus, rose-red dyed
And lily-white, the queeniest flower that blows.

INFERNAL MACHINES.

Fiendish Attempt to Destroy Life in New York City.

From the New York World, 30th.

An attempt on the lives of Mr. Cyrus W. Field and Mr. Wm. H. Vanderbilt was happily discovered yesterday afternoon by the explosion of an infernal machine in a leather mail pouch on an elevated railway train. The exchange of letters, which is due at Station F, on Third avenue, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, left the general Post-office at about 3:35 and was taken in a mail wagon to the elevated railroad station at Tyron row. There it was given in charge of a messenger, who placed it and other pouches for distribution on the east side, on the front platform of the front car of the train that was then leaving. Just after the train left the station at Ninth street and Third avenue the messenger heard a sound which he described to Superintendent Mosier at Station F as a "dull thud," but he did not pay any attention to it. When the train reached the Twenty-eighth street station the parcel was thrown off and taken to Station F. As soon as Superintendent Mosier received the package he saw smoke issuing from a slit near the bottom about five inches long. He quickly opened the bag, thinking that a box of matches had been sent by mail and had ignited, and threw the contents on the floor. All the letters in the parcel were blackened as if by powder, but none were destroyed.

Among the packages that fell out was one with the end blown open, and on examination it proved to be an infernal machine, which was addressed, in ink, in a German hand, to "Cyrus W. Field, Esq., corner Twenty-first street and Lexington avenue, City." Another package, similarly made up, was addressed, "William H. Vanderbilt, Esq., 459 Fifth avenue, City." The latter address was printed with lead pencil. When Mr. Mosier saw what the packages were intended for he sent for Postmaster Pearson, who immediately went to the station and made a thorough investigation. He found that both packages bore five ten-cent stamps each, and that the one addressed to Mr. Field had been mailed in the General Post-office between 3 and 3:30 o'clock p. m., while the other had been brought in by a collector from a down-town district.

The address of the package for Mr. Vanderbilt was carefully removed and the package was placed in water. While this was soaking he examined the package addressed to Mr. Field and found that it contained an ordinary powder flask large enough to contain about a pound of powder. The top had been wrenched off by the explosion, which had been caused by a mechanical device on one end of the box, but which could not be explained, as the apparatus was entirely destroyed. The package for Mr. Vanderbilt was allowed to soak until 10 o'clock, when it was examined. It was an ordinary wood board draw-box seven inches long, five inches wide and two inches deep. When the top was cut off a powder flask was found of about the same size as the one that exploded. It was carefully packed with wadding to keep it in position. On the back of the box was a bent tube sealed at each end with putty, and firmly secured by means of thin strips of brass. Alongside was a glass bulb about one-quarter of an inch in diameter. Both the tube and bulb contained a substance which looked like fulminate of mercury. Resting on the tube was a fusee which entered the cantster by a hole punched on one side. Between the tube and the back of the box was a narrow strip of green ribbon which ran forward to the end of the draw and was arranged so that when the slide was drawn out the tube would break, the fusee ignite and cause the powder to explode. Postmaster Pearson informed Mr. Field and Mr. Vanderbilt what had happened, and they placed the matter in his hands for investigation.

At the Post-office last night Postmaster Pearson exhibited the packages to the reporters, who, with their usual inquisitiveness, began to hunt about for further information. In the exploded machine was found a small piece of a German newspaper containing only advertisements. The paper addressed to Mr. "Vanderbilt" was examined. It was pasted on brown paper, and after being soaked and carefully removed revealed the intention of the conspirator or conspirators of doing away with the venerable Superintendent of Police, for it was addressed, "G. W. Walling, 311 E. 19th st."

Postmaster Pearson said that if the packages had gone through all right they would have been delivered at 5 o'clock, but he did not think that either Mr. Vanderbilt or Mr. Field would have opened such suspicious looking packages. How the explosion occurred he could not say, unless it was that the messenger knocked or trod on the powder while it was on the car-platform. He has not been able to communicate with the messenger, but will begin the examination to-day, and hopes to get on the track of the conspirators. He does not think that the persons who mailed the machines are very brilliant beings, or they would not have mailed them in places so near together, nor would they have attempted so simple a disguise in writing the address of one in ink and printing the other with lead pencil. Mr. Pearson said that he could only recall two other cases of sending infernal machines by mail. One was sent to Andrew H. Green, when he was Comptroller, and the other was sent to Senor de Uriarte, the Spanish Consul-General.

British Ballet Girls.

From a London Letter.

If you are a British "blood" you go and stand around the stage-door to speak to the ballet girls as they come out of the theater. As a spectacle, the Christmas pantomime at the Drury Lane must have been something superb, when it was new. The scenery is wonderfully vivid and picturesque even now. But the costumes are in the sere and playedout leaf. They are clothes which age has withered and custom staled. One fat girl has sat down upon her lunch, or something that has left grease spots all over the backs of her blue tights, a good many lean ones have poked their knee-pans through the delicate silk hosiery, and all of them have be-smooched themselves to an unnecessary extent. The beautiful satire of Mr. Gilbert, when he makes Grosvenor tell of the fate of Teasing Tom, who can only be fully comprehended by one who has gazed upon the gentle damsel alluded to. She is a pretty bad lot, which is not to be very deeply wondered at, since she only gets from $7.50 to $8 a week. She is ungrateful, flat-footed and brassy. She unites a portentous development below the waist to a scrawny outlook as to neck and arms, which, alas! tells its own tale of the upholsterer's art. She cuts her hair short in the back, like a man, and either "bangs" it across her forehead or frizzes it there in a way which gives her head a singularly top-heavy appearance in front. She perpetually bends forward a little, as though suffering from a slight attack of cholera morbus. Frequently she has a pretty face and quite often she is young. Always, when standing still, she is looking with the eye of calm and deliberate speculation upon the occupants of the stalls, and, when she is supposed to dance or move her arms about with gentle, rhythmic grace, she simply hops from one foot to the other with as little labor as possible, or arches her arms in unyielding, semi-circle curves that are as unpoetic as the kick of a camel. There are about 350 of these women on the stage of the Drury Lane during the pantomime season. If they were pretty, or under good discipline, or freshly clothed, they might do for America. But in the unsympathetic glare of limelights upon worn-out costumes, and behaving generally as though they were thoroughly bored, they do not please.

* * * "was lost to tally,
And married a girl in the corps de ballet,"

MRS. SCOVILLE.

Her Lecture in Behalf of Her Condemned Lunatic Brother.

New York Special to Cincinnati Gazette.

Mrs. Scoville, the sister of the assassin Guiteau, lectured to-night in the Criterion Theater, at Thirty-fifth street and Broadway, upon "The Guiteau Case from a Sister's Standpoint." There were eighty-one persons present, including seven reporters. Mrs. Scoville was accompanied upon the stage by her brother, John W. Guiteau, and by Philip Thorpe, the manager of the theater, who introduced her to the audience. She was dressed in plain black, with white lace at the neck. Her face is full and unwrinkled. Her cheek bones are slightly prominent, and her light blue eyes are set close together, beneath arched eyebrows that are scarcely perceptible. She spoke for an hour in a conversational tone, her voice being firm but not loud. "The Lord, and He alone," she said, "is my shield and my deliverer, and I pray to Him for help always. He sent me to the manager of this theater. I come to you as the sister of Charles J. Guiteau, for the sake of our country's fair name and justice. I plead for reason, for fairness and for an atom of that mercy which we shall all need when we stand before the judgment seat on the last day." She went on to say that the politicans were really to blame for Garfield's death; that their heads were filled with hate, and their raving caused her half crazy brother to become stark mad, and to believe that he was chosen by God to shoot the President. He was a natural hero worshipper, she said, and the voice of such men as Grant and Conkling came to him as the voice of divine inspiration. She then gave Guiteau's genealogy, and asserted that he inherited insanity. She denounced the trial as a conspiracy to satisfy public clamor, and to shield the real slayers of Garfield. She declared that the newspaper correspondents kept the trial from the public, that Judge Cox did what a Police Justice would blush to do, acknowledging collusion with the prosecution to entrap a half crazy prisoner, and that District Attorney Corkhill ran the court, the officers, the press, and the lawyers. She dubbed Dr. Hammond "a profound, antiquated, beastly old New York doctor," who, unless he attempted to kill President Garfield, but the doctors had completed the work. President Arthur ought to know, she thought, that Guiteau was crazy, and ought to desire to commute his sentence to life imprisonment. She asked her hearers to sign a petition to the President asking for commutation. After the lecture several people went upon the stage to speak to Mrs. Scoville. She will lecture again in the same place on next Sunday evening.

French Triplets.

Paris Special to New York Herald.

A lady was delivered of three children here last week under rather singular circumstances. She was looking at the bears in the Jardin des Plantes when the first child was unexpectedly brought into the world. Some compassionate bystander hailed a carriage and put mother and infant into it. Before she reached home, however, the lady was delivered of the second child. Hardly had she got to her journey's end when she presented her unhappy husband with a taird. It is satisfactory to know that the mother of the triplets is well. The father has threatened to commit suicide.

"I've been in politics sixteen years," said a veteran yesterday, "and I tell you that every city, town and village of the United States is governed by rings and cliques. It's unavoidable. An honest man's vote is in most cases thrown away. These cliques influence judges, juries and things generally. You can't get away from them." Probably Tom Jefferson and G. A CALIFORNIA ROMANCE.

A Foot-Pad Falls Heir to a Great Estate in England.

From the Woodland (Cal.) Democrat.

A few days ago a gentleman by the name of Rodery Eldridge arrived in Woodland and took rooms at the Capital Hotel. He stated that he was an Englishman and that his object in visiting California was to find a man by the name of Agernon Branningsford, who had left his home in England in the year 1850. Mr. Eldridge, who is cousin of the missing man, arrived in San Francisco about one month ago. Late last evening he happened to step into the Capital Hotel saloon and overheard the barkeeper, Patsy Donnelly, incidentally mention the name of "Old Ag." Mr. Eldridge, thinking that possibly this was an ellipsis of the name of the man for whom he was in search, made further inquiry about him. Mr. Donnelly informed him that "Old Ag." was a sort of "dead-beat" whom he had known for years as a tramp, and supposed that every saloon-keeper in the land was equally familiar with him, but he knew nothing of his history. At present he was engaged in sawing wood for a gentleman near by, and managed to spend his money for drink about as fast as he earned it. Mr. Eldridge, having been directed, sought out the man in question, whom he found engaged in that healthful occupation, and at once recognized him as a man of English birth, which greatly increased his hope of success. After a series of questions were answered by "Old Ag." it became very apparent to Mr. Eldridge that he was the same person he was looking for, notwithstanding his forlorn and dilapidated appearance. Finally Mr. Eldridge—who, by the way, is an English gentleman of the strictest type—ventured the remark: "Well, Old Ag.," as they seem to call you here, allow me to introduce myself as your cousin, Rodery Eldridge. I have come to tell you that your old father, Lord Branningsford, is dead and that you are heir to four-fifths of his estate, which is about $2,000,000." To say that "Old Ag" was startled by the unexpected news would not express one-half, and the scene which followed can be better imagined than described.

Lord Branningsford, who was very wealthy had two sons, one named Lionald and the other Agernon. In 1847 Lionald was married to a young lady of high birth by the name of Elizabeth Stration. Agernon was a frequent visitor at the family residence, and, owing to a quarrel between the two brothers over the young wife, Agernon embarked for America, and arrived in San Francisco in the fall of 1850. According to his own story, he first engaged as book-keeper in the wholesale house of A. P. Hotaling, in which position he remained for a year and a half, when a defalcation in his accounts caused his discharge. He then went to mining and his history from that epoch down to the time when he was found a penniless tramp in this city is but the story of the many who have gone the same way. About two years ago his brother died, and only five months ago his father also died, leaving him heir to four-fifths of the immense estate, one-fifth going to the cousin, who was made the residuary legatee if he could prove Agernon's death. This he set out to do, but coming to San Francisco he found the living heir a vagabond.

Preachers Off for Europe.

New York Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

As a large number of our clergy are now going to Europe, it has been suggested that some of them may bring over a few candidates for our vacant pulpits. All Souls' Church needs a pastor, and though it would not seem difficult to match the last incumbent (Bellows), this has not thus far been accomplished. The salary is $6,000, and the service is as easy as any clerical berth in the city. The Brick Church, which Bevan has just left, is also open to candidates, the salary being also $6,000. These pulpits have been regularly supplied, since it is not difficult to obtain preachers at $50 per Sabbath, but to unite a congregation on a pastor is a very different thing. Our Methodist friends, who get their preachers through conference, are preparing to accept whoever may be sent, but even in this body there is a widely extended wire-pulling, which generally carries the decision of conference. Speaking of the tourist clergy, it may be mentioned that "Hymn Book Robinson" (as he is often designated) sailed recently, and Walker, of Calvary Free Chapel, will soon follow. Stone, of Hartford, and Tremaine, of New Haven, and other prominent names are on the recent passenger lists. There will be an unusual begina of the American clergy this season, but in many instances this movement is of an unfortunate character. Often, indeed, the supplies become more popular than the absent pastor, and hence it is not an uncommon thing for the latter to receive anonymous letters warning him to resign on his return. I have known nearly a dozen clergymen unseated by the popularity of those who supplied their pulpits during a European tour. Hence I would recommend these wandering divines to consider the risks of such a movement. Newman, instead of going to Europe for his health, has gone to Atlantic City, and is thus able to return every Sunday for pulpit service, which is certainly a very judicious course.

George Sand and Dumas.

Paris Cor. New York Herald.

A new volume of George Sand's correspondence made its appearance this week on the Paris book-stalls. Many of the letters it contains are of deep interest, notably that in which the great writer tells the story of her rupture with her husband, Baron Dudevant. This volume, however, only contains a few of the numerous letters written by the author of "Consuelo." Figaro yesterday published one, which had not before been printed. It throws a prophetic and at the same time a retrospective light upon the very peculiar career of M. Alexandre Dumas fils. Only the other day M. Dumas claimed credit for having written the greatest part of the well-known comedy, "Le Marquis De Villemer." The play, as is well-known, was adapted from the far more famous novel of the same name, by George Sand. Listen to what Mme. Sand has to say of her collaboration with Dumas: "As you know, Alexandre has been to Nahant. Hearing that I thought of making a comedy of my 'Marquis de Villemer' he offered to help me. Feeling that he would be useful I consented. The more I see of him, however, the more I fear he is one of those people whom our Berrichon peasants, in their simple way, would call 'folk who pull all the blankets to their side of the bed.' When it becomes known that Alexandre is to be my collaborator the public will attribute the whole merit of the 'Marquis de Villemer' to him, nor from what I have seen of him should I wonder if he himself did the same as the public. If ever you hear that Alexandre wrote the piece alone do not contradict the story. It would pain him greatly and give me little pleasure."

Senatorial Guzzlers.

Washington Letter to Chicago Times.

A good deal of the gossip about the President's drinking comes from the Senate. The Senate is a regular club-room, so far as mere gossip is concerned. Some of the Senators who have been rather inclined to listen to the stories about President Arthur's luxurious ways of living would do well to look around among their own associates before criticising the President. There is a great deal of heavy drinking done in and about the Senate. Senators have to attend a great many dinners during the winter, where they sit through a great many courses of different kinds of wines. The result is to fasten upon a man with the slightest inclination in that direction the habit of heavy drinking. A well-known Southern Senator, two or three weeks ago, was off on a spree for ten days, although he was reported sick. Two or three Eastern Senators came into the Senate nearly every day actually drunk—not drunk enough for the galleries to notice anything peculiar, but drunk enough not to be fit for public business. There is more drinking in the Senate than there is about the House. Several efforts have been made to do away with the sale of liquors in the restaurants in the House and Senate. There have been made a good many high moral remarks about it in the open sessions of these bodies, but the rules and regulations on this subject are a perfect humbug and farce. For a time whisky was sold in both places in a tea cup, which was brought in as tea. Any one found enough of whisky to drink it out of a thick tea cup must be a hardened drinker. The protest of the men who love to drink in decent fashion, if they drink at all, finally brought about the existing order of things, when one can go to a table in either restaurant and order what he pleases.

CONSPICUOUS among the influential men of the Dominion is Mr. J. H. Metcalf, member of Parliament from the city of Kingston, Canada. Coming to a personal matter, we would mention that Mr. Metcalf was formerly subject to extreme soreness of the chest, for which, as he himself says, "I could find no remedy but St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy. I would not be without it for ten times its selling price."

Cadet Whittaker.

From the Chicago Times.

Cadet Whittaker is spending a few days in Chicago looking for employment. He called yesterday upon Dr. R. U. Piper, the microscopist, to whom he feels under special obligations for favorable testimony during the late trial. A careless observer might take Whittaker to be an Irishman, rather than a negro. He is slight in build, with a face so irregular as to be almost deformed, though the features give hardly a suggestion of his descent. His complexion is florid and very much freckled, his eyes, which have the peculiar swarthy blackness of the negro, being about the only race characteristic visible. Whittaker stated during his conversation with a representative of the Times that he considered that he had really been vindicated from the charge of having mutilated his own ears, though a verdict of "guilty" had been rendered at the close of his trial. He further stated, in alluding to his having been dismissed from West Point for failing to pass in the class examination, that he had been unfairly marked. He affirmed that his record for examination was one-half higher than the grade required for passing, but that the professor in charge had been heard to express beforehand his determination that he should not pass, and simply carried his point. A gentleman examined Whittaker's ears with reserved, but critical, attention; and, while those appendages could hardly be called models of aural architecture, he thought they showed no signs of having been treated with violence. In addition to this highly favorable indication, the young man is modest in manner, even to deprecation, and in conversation expresses himself with ease and intelligence.

Bouncing Two Clergymen.

New York Special to Cincinnati Gazette.

Nine members of the Mount Olivet (colored) Baptist Church in December last brought charges of false accusation of members against the pasor of the church, the Rev. D. W. Wisher. The charges were not sustained, and the nine complainants' names were stricken from the church-roll. Among them were the Rev. Adam F. Johnson and the Rev. F. W. Jackson. The Rev. Mr. Johnson was one of the organizers of the church. This evening Brothers Johnson and Jackson attended the service in the church, taking front seats. The services are held in a hall, which is reached by two flights of stairs from Seventh avenue, near Thirty-fourth street. The congregation was large, numbering several hundred people. After a hymn had been sung and the first prayer offered, the Rev. Mr. Wisher requested the Rev. Messrs. Johnson and Jackson to take less conspicuous seats. The clergymen addressed did not comply. Thereupon the deacons, F. G. W. Foulks, John B. Brown, John Moore, and Peter Miles, requested Policeman Phelps, of the Thirtieth Street Station, who had entered the church, to eject the reverend gentlemen, whose presence was not desired. The policeman said they were disorderly, and he had the authority to interfere. The deacons then advanced upon Brothers Johnson and Jackson with the view of ejecting them. The clergymen prepared to resist the advancing deacons with rigid muscles. A scuffle ensued, and the noise of tearing broadcloth was heard. The resisting clergymen were overpowered and hurried toward the head of the stairs, Brother Jackson without his coat and hat. The congregation arose, men hurried to the scene of the scuffle, and women shrieked and some fainted. The two clergymen were bounced down stairs and the services were resumed.

Krupp's New Guns.

Berlin Cor. London Standard.

Novel artillery experiments of an apparently highly important character took place a few days ago at Meppen. Krupp's great shooting ground near Meppen. Trials were made with both new cannons and projectiles. A new shell, called a "torpedo shell," was fired from a 21 centimetre gun. This shell is stated to afford a practical solution to a problem which has long engaged the attention of artilleristis, namely, to construct missiles which, after piercing the object aimed at, shall explode with torpedo-like effect. Of the new guns experimented with the most important was the pivot cannon, specially destined for the equipment of gun boats. The pivot, upon the top of which the cannon is fixed, is prolonged right down into the hold of the vessel, where it is turned, and so moves with it the cannon above to any direction. This contrivance, it is asserted, quite obviates any rebound, even after the firing of a heavy charge. It also contributes greatly to insure the success of aim, and at the same time gives increased velocity to the projectile. This pivot system may, it is stated, even when the guns are of a large bore—such as thirty, thirty-five or forty centimetres—be employed for the equipment of small gunboats. It is estimated that the cost and equipment of each of these pivot gunboats would not be more than a tenth of a large frigate, and it is insisted that they would be far more effective instruments of destruction, on account of their swiftness and the facility with which they are managed.

Our Little Beauties, when pressed, will on stick to the lips. Finest cigarettes made.

Police Grievances.

There is considerable discontent among the members of the police force at the number of hours they have to remain on duty. The night watch go on duty at 11 o'clock in the night and stay until 11 o'clock the succeeding day. Should any officer make an arrest during the night he is expected to report to the Police Court of the District in which he has his beat and give his evidence against the offender. Most of the men are married, and to loaf around the court-room waiting for their cases to be called works a great hardship on them. They are often summoned to appear in the afternoon, when they should be taking natural rest and sleep. Private business is also made to suffer because no time is allowed in which the officers can attend to it. In the First District Court, where the principal business of a criminal nature is done, the injustice of making the officers sit around is very apparent. Every morning from fifteen to thirty policemen are there to await the disposition of cases in which they are interested. Many of these cases are of a trivial character, such as obstruction of sidewalks and streets, but nevertheless they must be passed on, however small they may be.

This hardship not only appertains to the Police Court but also to the Criminal, the Court of Correction, and investigations before the grand jury. A short time since Judge Laughlin recommended to the grand jury that they make their investigations in the morning so that the police could appear before them and get through their duties at a seasonable hour. It is certain that a big kick will soon be made by the force against the custom and they hope that a radical change will be effected.

A DEAD CRIMINAL.

The Career of a Notorious Bank Robber Ended at Last.

From the Chicago Times.

Robert Scott, one of the Northampton Bank robbers, has just died at the Massachusetts penitentiary of consumption, from which disease he had been a sufferer for about a year. His body will be forwarded at once for burial to his mother at Warsaw, Ill., where his brother, Walter Scott, also resides. His mother visited him three months ago, and his wife, who resides in New York City, has been a frequent visitor at the prison. It is understood that $100 has been ordered from his brother to pay the undertaker's expenses. It is also understood that Scott's wife, who anticipated his early demise, ordered the funeral articles, such as coffin and robes, some months ago. James Dunlap, his companion in the crime at Northampton, still remains at the prison, and the last day Scott spent on earth he was with him a portion of the time. Chaplain Barnes visited Scott often during his sickness. Scott said he wanted to die, and manifested no fear of the future. He was conscious up to within an hour and ten minutes of his death, and his wife and Warden Earle were with him during his last hours on earth, his wife having come from New York for that purpose. Dunlap expresses great sorrow, it is said, at Scott's demise.

Scott made no confession of the bank robbery, in which he was called the leader, as many expected he would. During his closing days he made no allusions to the job in any way. Four of the robbers engaged with him at Northampton are now at large. Robert Scott was sentenced at Northampton for twenty years, when he was 28 years old, for robbing the Northampton Bank, and as the boss of the job. He entered the prison January 21, 1878, and his sentence would have expired February 16, 1894, had no allowance been made for good behavior. Scott made his will Monday night, giving $1,500 to his wife and $500 to James Dunlap, his bank-robbing associate, asserting that he owed Dunlap that amount. Where his money is deposited is not yet known.

The crime for which Scott was sentenced was a most daring and successful job. Eight men participated, among them being Edson, the man who built the locks for the plundered safe. In the dead of night the cashier was taken from his bed and a rope placed around his neck by the gang. He was led to the bank, and on the penalty of death he revealed the combination, upon which knowledge the safe was easily opened by Edson, who was masked, as were the rest of the gang. The robbers coolly selected from the contents of the vault only such securities as were easily negotiable, and the proceeds of their bold venture was a cool million and a half, most of which was in United States, railroad and other bonds, none of which were registered. These they placed in a valise and departed, Edson locking the safe behind them by a combination of his own, and was afterward sent from New York by his employers to open the safe, no suspicion at that time having attached to him. The plunder was left concealed for ten days in the garret of an old school-house in Northampton, and finally removed by Edson. When it came to a division of the spoils the rogues quarreled among themselves, and a plot was formed to put Edson out of the way and so cheat him out of his share. The plot was to throw Edson off a train or to assassinate him in the night, and in some way he learned of his danger and decided to squeal. He charged that Scott and Dunlap were leaders, with Shang Draper, Red Leary, Billy Connors, Jim Greer and Worcester Charley as confederates. Scott and Dunlap were convicted, but Red Leary, Connors and Draper were not caught until a year ago, after they had broken out of Ludlow street jail, where they were held for other bank jobs. Leary, Connors and Draper effected a compromise with the bank's officials, and were let go. Greer has not yet been found, and the identity of Worcester Charley has never been established. He belongs somewhere out west, and seems to show up only when he is to take a hand in a job. He has baffled the skill of the most accomplished detectives in the country, who have not yet given up the chase. The same gang robbed the First National Bank of Quincy, Ill., the Second National Bank of Covington, Ky., and the First National Bank of Pittsburg, Pa. After Edson squealed the gang broke up, and Red Leary and Draper are said to have joined with Billy Porter, Johnny Irving, Gil Yost, and Jimmy Hope, who, with Worcester Charley, cleaned out the Manhattan Bank, and another at Rockford, Conn. Charley and Hope were afterward suspected of complicity in the Dexter, Me., bank robbery, in which Cashier Barron met his death. Worcester Charley has not been heard of since, and Hope is now serving a fifteen years' sentence for a bank job in California. The Northampton bank has recovered $400,000 of the money stolen from its safe, through Leary, Draper and Connors, and the whereabouts of the balance of over $1,000,000 is supposed now to be known only to Dunlap.

THE circus seems to have brought fine weather to town.

JUDGE LAUGHLIN is in danger of encountering a cyclone in the shape of a mandamus from the Supreme Court. Gaudeamus!

IT took Judge LAUGHLIN a long time to prepare himself for committing a blunder, but he finally succeeded in doing a good job. He has tramped on himself, so to speak.

JUDGE LAUGHLIN has been under the impression, since mounting the woolsack, that he was running a Supreme Court. The fact is he is only a yellow dog under the judicial apple cart, as it were.

IT is believed in England that the British Government is in the midst of a ministerial crisis, brought about by differences of opinion on the Irish question. FOSTER'S early retirement is predicted.

LAST year the City Work-house earned $8,000 over and above expenses. The city should go into the business at once. We could support a couple more institutions of this kind without much difficulty if the courts would whoop up a little.

GOV. CRITTENDEN declines to permit the Legislature to submit a constitutional amendment which will allow the citizens of St. Louis to increase their taxation for street improvements, sewer extensions, street sprinkling, etc. The Governor is afraid that the town will impoverish itself if not properly restricted.

IT IS a mistake to suppose that missionary work does not pay. One gentleman who was sent to Japan at an expense of $750 to his congregation has realized $7,000 profit on the Japanese idols which he has shipped back to America. It takes a man of deep convictions and profound thought to extract all the profit possible from an alien religion.

A SHORT time ago Chief Judge [illegible]TT announced that he was going to use the entire police power in his hands in closing up gambling in St. Louis. He seems to have exhausted his power in about twenty-four hours. Last night a number of gambling-houses throughout the city were open and ready for business, and there was no policeman anywhere to molest or make afraid.

OUR Ten-thousand-dollar-a-week Legislature has resolved to adjourn on Tuesday next. The caucus redistricting bill will be put through by that time, and ex-Gov. PHELPS' hopes of going to Congress as a Representative-at-large will lie withering in the sun. The Legislature will have cost the State about $30,000 by that time, and Col. JIM BROADHEAD will be thrown in for a full suit of political grave-clothes.

GEN. CHALMERS is said to be dissatisfied with the Democratic party because its representatives in Congress didn't stand by him in good style in his contest with the negro LYNCH. He has returned home in a very bad humor, and it is said that he has a well-conceived plan to Mahonize Mississippi concealed about his person. Nearly all the great political and religious reforms in the world have been worked out through soreheadism.

WE trust that the ladies in charge of the new Armory entertainment will not commit the mistake of encouraging raffles and lotteries. So far as public morals are concerned the gambling which bestows its profits on charity is no better than the kind which maintains vicious idlers. It is understood that if lotteries are permitted at the Armory Hall entertainment the Chief of Police, who is not unkind to public gamblers, will raid the place and arrest the ladies and gentlemen connected therewith. The idea will be to bring the prohibitory laws into disrepute and create a reaction in favor of the gamblers.

SINCE ISMAIL PASHA'S abduction ARABY BEY has been the ruling spirit in Egypt. Good luck and good management have seated him firmly in power and now he has administered a severe defeat to the conspirators who, incited by the deposed Pasha, have attempted to drive ARABY BEY out of his employment and have menaced his life. ARABY seems to intend to follow up his advantage; the conspirators have been degraded to the ranks and exiled to Soudan, and now the question of discontinuing ISMAIL PASHA'S civil list, on account of his proved connection with the plot, will be submitted to the Khedive. If the supplies are cut off, ISMAIL will find considerable difficulty in [illegible] Counting rebellion in Egypt.

The rebuke was not taken in good part by the Professor, who subsequently explained to his friends that the presence of Miss MCTAVISH was the only thing which prevented him from imbruing his hands in the heart's blood of Mr. FERGUSON. One BROWN, who is designated as the Master of the Hunt, came up at this point in the proceedings and knocked Mr. FERGUSON down. It must give every member of aristocratic society throughout the broad Republic a thrill of pleasure to learn of these gallant doings of the chivalric descendants of Lord BALTIMORE and the CARROLLS and HOWARDS and the different bodies of emigrants which broke into Maryland in the good old colony days when we lived under the King. Fox-hunting is essentially an aristocratic sport, and if a gentleman is to be cowhided for presenting a fox's brush to the lady of his heart then the element of danger will also be added to this exhilarating pastime.

LAUGHLIN VS. LAW.

We want to do justice to HENRY D. LAUGHLIN.

His decision in favor of the gamblers is solely and exclusively based upon one point, and one point only—that the title of the act does not clearly state the subject of the act. In every other respect he decides the law perfectly constitutional. But upon this point of the title—and one point is as good as a hundred—this extraordinary Judge holds the law to be unconstitutional and null and void. We quote from his decision:

> In the title of this act I find no expression of the subject of the act. In the language of Porter, J., of New York, quoted by Henry, J., of Missouri, in Kansas City vs. Payne: "The body of the bill expresses its object. The title of the bill disguises and conceals it." No person from reading its title would ever guess at the object. For this reason I hold that the first objection made by the plea is well made; but the act of March 9, 1881, is unconstitutional on this ground and this only: that the indictment charges the commission of a misdemeanor only, and that it will be certified to the other end of the building for trial.

Now, what is the exact title of this act? Here it is:

An act to AMEND section 1547 of article 8 of the Revised Statutes relating to offenses against public morals and decency, and the public police, and miscellaneous offenses.

It was not an original act. It was an amendatory act only. Now, in the name of decency and reason, what could be plainer and clearer than to retain the exact title of the old law, giving its exact number and language? What could more clearly express and point out the subject of the act than this explicit title, "An act to amend section 1547 of article 8 of the Revised Statutes"? Was this not as plain as the name of the street and the number of the house Judge LAUGHLIN lives in? And did the title not proceed to mention still further this: An Act to amend section 1547 of article 8 of the Revised Statutes "relating to offenses against public morals and decency and the public police, and miscellaneous offenses"?

Does the learned Judge perhaps think that the title was wrong because the keeping of a gambling hell is not an "offense against public morals and decency"?

The old law made the keeping of a gambling-hell a misdemeanor. The new law simply amended the old law, except that it changed one section and made the offense a felony. It was practically not a new law, only a new amendment to the old law. Now, what better title could there be than the old one with the statement of the amendment?

What is the origin and object of titles to legislative acts?

The sole origin, intent and object of having titles is to avoid deception and fraud in Legislatures, to protect the law-makers in voting, to make it impossible that they should vote, through a misleading title, for a bill for which they would not vote if the title were otherwise and clearly stated the subject. For instance, if under the title of "offenses against public morals and decency" the law would have smuggled in some immoral or indecent job, trick or fraud, the law would clearly be unconstitutional. In that case there would be a manifest incongruity and inconsistency between the subject and the title of the act. But there is not the slightest contradiction, deception or imposition between the title and the subject of the JOHNSON law. They harmonize perfectly. What is still more important, the lawmakers knew perfectly well what they did in voting for the change. The question was much discussed and debated at the time. Every vote cast was cast with the fullest knowledge of the object of the bill. This has never been questioned even by the gamblers. Thus we face the following undisputed facts:

1. The intent in having a title to legislative acts is solely to protect the legislators from imposition. Judges have nothing to do with titles unless the subject of the act is clearly inconsistent with the title. Can any sane man claim that in the present case?

2. The Legislature almost unanimously passed this law. It is conceded that it did this understandingly, deliberately. It was never even claimed that even a single legislator voted for the measure without fully knowing what he was doing. There is not a shadow of pretense that anybody was deceived. There is not a shade of a shadow of question but what the Legislature did mean and intend to have this precise law and did overwhelmingly vote for it and think the title expressed its desire properly.

3. Thus the remarkable exhibition is presented that, though titles were only intended to protect the law-makers—though the bill itself is the prime thing, the title only an incident — though in this case the title was only designed to express it plainly—it is now twisted and turned into the very instrument which destroys the measure itself and defies the will of the law-makers.

And all that by a Judge of inferior jurisdiction and still more inferior associations and qualifications! All this by a mere trial-judge whose first lesson in law was probably that a constitutional question should be decided by the highest courts only, not the lowest!

It is painful to read Judge LAUGHLIN'S decision. It is painful to be obliged to analyze and criticise it. For never was an important law trampled into the dust by a more miserable subterfuge. Never was a law more plain, direct and simple. Never was the emphatic intent of law-makers more shamefully mocked and defied by so flimsy a technicality.

THE Republican of this city is a very determined foe of gambling—in a pig's eye. Filled with the idea that the LAUGHLIN decision has rendered nugatory the JOHNSON law, which makes the keeping of a public gaming-house a felony, it comes to the front this morning with a lot of ingenious twaddle about the evil of "skin" games, such as "hog faro," "bunko," etc., and a few virtuous observations about the evil effects of gambling when mixed up with law-making and politics. Summing up all the wisdom at its command it hurls itself against the sinful gamesters in this heroic style:

> If it is true that the State law is a dead letter, as it has been in effect since its passage, it will devolve upon our Police Board to take the gambling matter in hand, and apply all the authority given in the ordinances, vigorously and effectively, to the immediate and permanent suppression of every known public gambling-house in St. Louis. The Police Board should immediately organize a succession of raids—not shams and mere shows—but sharp, quick and decisive descents, as often as may be necessary to close up, and keep closed, these haunts of idleness, profligacy and crime.

This sounds well at a distance, but it is highly specious. The old Republican knows very well that so long as gambling is simply declared a misdemeanor such men as PATE will roll in metaphorical clover. They will snap their fingers at the authorities. They care nothing for fines so long as they can keep their establishments open and can command public patronage. The Republican knows full well that the police authorities have repeatedly declared that they will not raid gambling establishments. Hence its emphatic call for raiding and door-smashing, and all that sort of thing, is not so virtuous after all. It simply, as we have said, sounds well at a distance. The gamblers of St. Louis were never disturbed or terrified until the law was passed making their business a felony. When the penitentiary frowned before them they began to realize that Jordan was a hard road to travel. That the law was not enforced from the start was due to the supineness of the police and the courts. The Republican would have us believe that its very severity defeated its enforcement but the public knows where the trouble is to be located. After the gamblers have had the benefit of all the friendship that they can secure in and around the Four Courts, the business of making it unpleasant for them will proceed.

A GENTLEMAN who professes to be a firm friend of the POST-DISPATCH writes us a note to say that he has but one fault to find with us and that is that we are too much given to fault-finding editorially. It is his opinion that we ought to seek out more things in the world to commend. It is plain that this well-meaning person has a highly erroneous idea of the true business of a newspaper. Nobody cares for a journal that is given to puffery and the buttering of parsnips with fine words. The people who act honestly and squarely are only doing that which is expected of them and they will be rewarded in Heaven. The evil-doers must be chased down and attended to right here. Society must be protected against malefactors, and there is no agency so powerful in showing up frauds and shams and bringing criminals to justice as the press. The POST-DISPATCH has helped to bring about some first-class reforms, not by pleasant chatter, but by hard pounding and persistent clamor. We have one department of our paper, however, set aside exclusively for pleasantry and geniality. We allude to the advertising department. There people are allowed to say all sorts of nice things about themselves and their goods. There is nothing there to offend good taste, if we may except an occassional exaggerated statement made in the best possible spirit. Persons who are so delicately organized that they can't withstand the rough dealing of our editorial and news columns will find solace and sweet words and an absence of rude personality over in the tall grass of our advertising columns.

LIEUT. DANENHAUER and a number of the survivors of the Jeannette Polar Expedition have arrived in St. Petersburg after a long journey through Siberia. One member of the party is hopelessly insane, and the others are more or less battered up, and unfitted for citizenship. After a few days the party will proceed to Paris. Lieut. DANENHAUER, it is said, contemplates reading a paper before the Royal Geographical Society on the possibilities of trade on the north coast of Siberia. The Lieutenant's paper will doubtless be very interesting. We haven't the remotest idea as to the character of the trade that he wants to establish with the north coast of Siberia, but up to this time the only traffic between Siberia and civilization has been an exchange of scientific human bodies for walrus teeth and whale's blubber. Commerce has not been very much benefited by it.

THE hour draws near when the question of paving Olive street will be definitely settled. A majority of the property-holders along the thoroughfare have expressed a preference for granite, which can be laid down here on six inches of concrete at a cost of about $48 per square. The granite pavement on Second street shows what can be done with the material toward making a smooth thoroughfare. One objection to granite, made by some of the Olive street residents, is that it is noisy, as compared with asphalt. This may be true, but Fifth avenue, New York, is paved with it, likewise Beacon street, Boston, and Broad street, Philadelphia. These streets are mainly occupied with private residences. One advantage about the granite street is that when once laid it is there for years. It is not necessary to rip it up and repair it every few months. If Olive street is paved with granite the street car companies will use the same material between their tracks, and, as a result, we will have one of the finest thoroughfares in the land.

LAST Sunday a howling mob at Gallion, Ohio, took a negro rapist out of jail and hung him to a tree in the most barbaric manner. The Cincinnati Commercial excuses the outrage upon the ground that there is "a deep sense of disgust and rage at the spectacle of the murderer of the President, ten months after his crime, still fat and saucy and making money," and that it is impossible for the people to restrain their fury occasionally. The fact is that the people of Ohio, though highly intellectual, are extremely impressionable. The Commercial has taught them that there is nothing so magnificent as vengeance. It has always advocated the administration of popular justice and has always been on the side of the fashionable frenzy. It has spoiled the good Ohioans, and the reckless State of Kentucky, just across the river, is compelled to blush about three times a week for its once proud neighbor.

—Mr. Lynch in Congress: Mr. Lynch was dressed in a well-fitting black suit, Prince Albert coat buttoned closely around him, a white standing collar and black scarf completing his outfit. It was generally agreed that a better effort had not been made on the floor of the House for many years.

CARD FROM DR. W. G. ELIOT.

Some Important Statements to the Armory Fair Ladies—Lotteries and Raffles.

ST. LOUIS, May 2.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am glad to see what was to be expected from the POST-DISPATCH in the matter of the gamblers and lottery venders, that such strong ground is taken in favor of the maintenance of the laws and the punishment of wrong-doers. "The gamblers must go," and the lottery business must be put down.

But in the same paper you give notice, in common with the other public journals, of a lottery scheme for the benefit of Armory Hall, conducted by our best citizens, gentlemen and ladies prominent in society and church circles, in which a diamond cross and other valuables are the prizes, with tickets and drawing arrangements after the usual lottery methods.

Now, can you tell me wherein the moral or religous distinction is found, or how one system of lotteries and gambling is wrong and the other right? It is said, perhaps, the cause is good. A work of charity, or religion, or public benefit is in views and that is the easiest way and the most attractive to raise the money. But even if so, the end cannot justify the means if wrong and pernicious. Otherwise we might excuse theft, or falsehood, or any other wrong-doing by the same argument.

Still further, it is a reasonable question whether the end sought, say the building a church and furnishing it, or the support of an orphan asylum, or the provision for public protection, is more commendable than the support of one's family and the education of one's children. A man who has this in view and establishes a lottery or faro table, as a business, can excuse himself as justly, and the motive may be far more urgent, even to the point of seeming necessity. The only distinction must be looked for in the violation of law, in the one case, which is avoided or evaded in the other. As to the demoralizing influence on society, especially among the young, the difference is not in kind, but only in degree. No church or charity lottery or raffle was ever yet successfully carried on without lowering the moral and religious tone of all engaged in it. The profit generally depends upon contrivances that cannot bear moral scrutiny. To get the largest return from the smallest outlay, with a hundred blanks to one prize, and through persistent persuasion of fascinating solicitors, is the usual course of proceeding. Even children are enlisted and stimulated by praise to be sufficiently bold in ticket peddling. Two years ago a "madonna and child" was the highest prize in a church lottery and attractive prizes for Sunday school children were exposed in shop windows. Last year an orphan asylum was relieved from debt by an elaborate and barefaced lottery scheme, publicly conducted. Now the prize is a cross, the symbol of salvation. The sacredness or beauty of the prize cannot purify the methods of gaining it.

Recently, in all parts of the country, and in St. Louis as well, the leading Bishops and clergy of all churches have openly condemned such modes of raising money, and in some churches they are absolutely prohibited. They ought to be so in all. Whatever is needed for legitimate uses in church or charity can be obtained by direct appeal. The cause of religion needs no unrighteous agencies. The public good cannot be promoted by any demoralizing influence.

The Armory Hall is a most praiseworthy enterprise. It ought to be built and furnished, generously and free from debt, by our public-spirited citizens. Let the deficiency, after legitimate means of raising funds are exhausted, be divided into shares of $50 each, and it will be undoubtedly contributed. At all events, let no means be used except those which can be defended on the score of right as well as of expediency. Neither moral nor civil law should be violated.

And this brings me to another and important point. Does not the law forbid lotteries and raffles, for whatever purpose conducted?

Sec. 1566, revised statutes, was so amended, last year, by rather awkward legislation, as to make lotteries when conducted "as a business" a felony, and at the same time to exclude raffles, etc., from the penalty of imprisonment. But Sec. 1567 stands unchanged, and reads as follows:

> "Any person who shall sell or expose to sale, or cause to be sold or exposed to sale, or shall keep on hand for the purpose of sale, or shall advertise or cause to be advertised for sale, or who shall print or publish such advertisement, or shall aid or assist or be in anywise concerned in the sale or exposure to sale of any lottery ticket in any lottery, or device in the nature of a lottery, within this State or elsewhere, and any person who shall advertise or cause to be advertised the drawing of any scheme in any lottery, or shall print or publish such advertisement and shall be convicted thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall for each and every offense forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding $1,000."

One of the most prominent lawyers of this city said to me to-day that this law applies to raffles and all other devices in the nature of a lottery, and that in all probability, taking into account the excited condition of the public mind at this time, any such raffles, etc., would be brought before the "courts of chmpetent jurisdiction."

Is it not worth the while of law-abiding citizens, both ladies and gentlemen, however high in social standing, to consider this matter carefully? Let righteous ends be pursued only by righteous means, and the best results will be most successfully obtained.

W. G. ELIOT.

St. Louis, May 1, 1882.

Dr. John T. Hodgen.

118 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK, April 30.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I beg permission to add my tribute to the worth of that good man and great surgeon, Prof. John T. Hodgen, whose sudden death has so shocked and saddened the citizens of St. Louis, as well as the entire medical profession throughout the country. To me, particularly, the news of his unexpected taking off is simply appalling, as a letter from him arrived simultaneously with the telegram announcing that he was no more.

For half a life-time I have known him well and intimately, and the early admiration of the medical student of 1853 ripened into the mature and earnest love of 1882, when he had arrived at the pinnacle of his fame, whither he kindly beckoned all he had honored with his confidence and friendship.

John T. Hodgen was a remarkable man in every respect—of rugged genius, of untiring industry, of uncompromising honesty, he literally hewed his way through the unexplored regions of his earlier career, until he stood out one of the pioneers of Western success. It was at this period of his life that it was my good fortune to first know him and to respect him.

It was in the winter of 1853-54, when he was acting as prosector of surgery to the late brilliant but erratic Professor Joseph Nash McDowell, that he likewise filled the demonstratorship of anatomy in the Missouri Medical College. Rivalry was intense and opposition bitter in the ranks of faculties of that school and the St. Louis Medical College. Few medical men in St. Louis can appreciate the circumstances of the insatiate war then waged in medical politics, and to the great goodness, tact and common sense of Dr. Hodgen was the profession indebted for the burial of the ranking animosities of the followers of McDowell and Pope. The green sod now covers most of them, and whatever lives of the sweetening memories breathed by the soft south winds of Bellefontaine and Calvary will be intensified and watered by the tears dropped on the grave of the peace-making and peace-loving Hodgen.

As a man Dr. John T. Hodgen was exemplary, earnest, silent, thoughtful, courageous and true, as a friend he was steadfast, loyal, unswerving and affectionate. As a surgeon proper he was without a peer in the length and breadth of the land, and he stood unrivaled with those who knew his science and readiness. Had his lines been cast in London instead of the wild woods of the young West, he would have carved a reputation in men's estimation equal to Sir Astley Cooper or Sir Benjamin Brodie's. Had he lived under the shadows of the Parisian school he would have stood alongside Dupuytren, Velpeau or Nelaton.

In America Valentine Mott, Gibson and Stone alone died possessed of grander reputations as surgeons. A few men now living may have more learning in the pure science of surgery, men like Gross in Philadelphia, Sir James Paget in London, or Billroth in Vienna; but no one of them can wield the bistoury with more skill nor is more ready for emergencies than was Hodgen.

St. Louis has given up some great men, but she has never yielded a greater sacrifice than when John T. Hodgen was carried to the beyond. Great statesmen, brilliant orators, dashing generals, mitred bishops, learned judges, wise lawyers and good physicians stand on the misty shores to welcome him, and in all the silent throng no greater soul, no kinder heart, no gentler disposition is to be recalled than John T. Hodgen's.

As my friend I weep for him; as my brother physician I mourn for him. I drop the immortelle wreath upon his grave and I feel that mankind is honored, humanity blessed and the world benefitted by the example of so grand and noble a character as John T. Hodgen's. In the weariness of the future I shall be strengthened by the recollection of his greatness, and in the memories of the past I will feel the grandeur of his friendship, the nobility of his purpose and single-heartedness of his wonderful individuality.

With my brother physicians and with my old friends of St. Louis I commingle my tears.

MONTROSE A. PALLEN, M. D.

Card From Mrs. Davenport.

ST. LOUIS, May 2.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I noticed in last evening's issue of your paper that while a very full and highly-colored account of the interview between your reporter and me was given, he failed, nevertheless, to state the reason why I spoke as I did of my social standing and bringing up as compared with Mr. Davenport's. The reason is this, and I wish it to be well understood: Since my arrival in St. Louis I have heard on all sides that Mr. Davenport has put upon me the great humiliation of spreading the report that when he married me he had lowered himself: first, because my family and I, as he says, are inferior to him socially and in every other respect, and, secondly, because I have been an actress. That I have been an actress at any time is an assertion which I must, in duty to myself, pronounce to be absolutely untrue.

I wish also to state that I am much obliged to Mr. Davenport for endeavoring to keep the divorce out of the papers in order to prevent me from becoming notorious. Had he shown the same kind consideration (?) for me in the past I would not have been compelled to appeal to the courts to redress my wrongs, and thus make myself, as he terms it, notorious.

Respectfully, ALICE DAVENPORT.

A Card from Mr. Garesche.

ST. LOUIS, May 1, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The language in my regard published in your paper of this evening, as spoken by Judge Clover, was so destitute of even a semblance of truth that I thought that there must be some mistake, but inquiry confirms your statement. In reply, neither directly nor indirectly am I connected with the case of Valle vs. Picton. My old-fashioned notions of professional honor forbid me to accept of the charge of a case where I must be the chief witness for my client or where his interests conflict with my own gain. In disregard of both of these rules Judge Clover acts as plaintiff's counsel. He may then well gnash his teeth at me—hence his diatribe. I ask that out of justice to me the same prominence be given to my answer as to his attack on me, and which can only recoil in infamy on himself.

A. J. P. GARESCHE.

Hoodlumism.

ST. LOUIS, May 1, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I would beg to call the attention of the police authorities, through your columns, to the doings of a lot of young but very vicious hoodlums infesting the neighborhood of Fifteenth and O'Fallon streets. The peaceable citizens have come to the conclusion that patience has ceased to be a virtue, and if the sleek and sleepy policemen on that beat continue to prove incapable of keeping the young scamps under control, more severe measures than caning, which was resorted to by an energetic young citizen last night, will be applied.

TAY-PAYER.

A Jolly Good Newspaper.

ST. LOUIS, May 2, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I congratulate you upon this evening's P.-D. It is a newsy newspaper. "The Gamblers' Triumph," "The Doom of Gas," "Both Sides," "Picton's Pickle," and various other matters, constitute a good day's work for any evening paper in the broad realm.

B.

He is Fond of Gush.

From the Washington Critic.

Some people are disposed to criticise Governor Crittenden, of Missouri, for advertising his action in the matter of the killing of Jesse James. If those who do this would just stop and think a moment, they would not be so harsh. Governor Crittenden is a Kentuckian, and Kentuckians are not in the habit of allowing others to walk off with any glory that belongs to them, or anybody else, no matter how it comes, and Crittenden is no exception to the rule among them. He is never so happy as when he is gushing or being gushed over.

The Beauty of Epithets.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

In denouncing Blaine Mr. Perry Belmont did not rise to the height of his great argument. In stigmatizing him as a "bully" and a "coward," Perry should have added "and a horse-thief." One epithet would have been as applicable as the other.

One Seaworthy Vessel.

From the Chicago Times.

It is noticeable that the steamers of the navy that do the excursion business for Washington officialism are in good repair. The Tallapoosa is in as active request and is apparently as stanch as it was in the good old days of Rutherford.

Can Be Disgusted.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Congressmen are said to be disgusted with the Shipherd affair. It takes a great deal to disgust a Congressman, but it takes effect all over when it finally comes on.

A Great Man.

From the Boston Post.

Deacon Richard Smith, of Cincinnati, is reported to have invented a flying machine. The mind of a great man is never idle.

OUR magnificent WINDOW display of DIAMONDS, RUBIES and SAPPHIRES has excited GREAT admiration to-day, and we are pleased to observe that BUYERS have LARGELY availed themselves of the splendid opportunities we offer of obtaining the choicest goods at REMARKABLY LOW FIGURES, which we are enabled to make by the very advantageous purchases made by our Mr. Mathey, who has JUST RETURNED from Europe. Kittie Mulcahy, Now Kittie Lamont.

Kittie Mulcahy, during her confinement in jail under the charge of murdering Tonkin, received very extensive advertising. Before her incarceration Kittie's moral character was not of the best, and it is now stated that she has profited by her notoriety and adopted again the life of an abandoned woman. It is said that she, in company with another girl, has rented a room in the vicinity of Eighth and Olive streets, and that she now sails under the more æsthetic name of Kitty Lamont. People living in the neighborhood have learned the fact of this now celebrated woman being in their midst and they are consequently making a tremendous kick. The police have not yet been informed of the matter, but will probably be notified within a day or two.

Settled.

About a week ago Ed. B. Grace went into the Sazarac on Olive street, between Fifth and Sixth, rather the worse for liquor. He had purchased some bananas and insisted on the persons in the place sharing them with him. He became rather violent and Mr. Griffin, one of the proprietors, ordered him out. An encounter ensued, in which Grace is said to have drawn a knife and stabbed Griffin. He was arrested by Officer Ed Phillips, and a warrant was sworn out charging Grace with assault with intent to kill. This morning the case came up in the Court of Criminal Correction, and a settlement made by Grace paying costs. Grace is said to be considerable of a gentleman and regrets the affair, and on this account the matter was not prosecuted.

A Sudden Attack.

Christopher Ferry, a resident of Leachville, Ill., was walking along Clark avenue this morning, and when opposite to the entrance of the Four Courts Building he suddenly fell backwards, striking his head on the heavy stone sidewalk. An ambulance was telegraphed for from the Central Station and Ferry taken to the City Hospital. He was taken with a fit of some kind or else an attack of heart disease. When helped into the ambulance he appeared in a dazed condition.

A REPORT was sent to the Police Department this morning from the Third District to the effect that an old man named Patrick Murray, 62 years old, was lying sick and destitute in the vacant house No. 928 N. Thirteenth street. Murray has been a resident of the city for the past twenty-one years and is now, for the first time, unable to work. When questioned, he expressed the desire to be put in the City Hospital. The Health Department was notified and he will probably be removed to-day.

FRENZY WITH A FORK.

A Husband's Sudden Attack of Violent Madness.

He Drags His Wife From Bed, Kneels Upon Her Breast and Attempts to Kill Her With a Fork.

She is Stabbed in the Face and Disfigured for Life—The Terrible Scene Between a Maniac and His Helpless Wife.

The residents in the neighborhood of No. 1609 North Nineteenth street were aroused from their slumbers Sunday morning at 3 o'clock by the shrill screams of a woman who apparently was in great agony, proceeding from the above number. Several of the neighbors hurried to the house and upon reaching the door could hear the constrained breathing of some one, mingled with the screams of a woman. The door was forced open, revealing a sickening and blood-curdling spectacle. Partially prostrated upon the floor of the bedroom was the wife of Michael Baker, the husband standing over her, CLUTCHING HER THROAT WITH ONE HAND and with the other inflicting stabs upon the woman's face and body with an old bent and rusty fork. After a struggle of some moments the woman was released from her husband's nearly fatal clutches and he was secured. An officer was sent for, and Baker was conveyed to the Third District Station, not far distant. A superficial examination by the officer in charge there satisfied him that the

and locking him up, he was kept at the station till 9 o'clock Sunday morning, when at the intercession of his friends he was turned over to them and taken to St. Vincent's Asylum in South St. Louis. Mrs. Baker, who is seriously injured, although probably not fatally, was seen by a POST-DISPATCH reporter at her home this morning. The lady was in too weak a condition to talk much, the nervous shock, combined with the physical injuries received, almost completely prostrating her. At the mention of her husband's name, she burst into tears, and, forgetful of her own injuries, anxiously asked as to his condition. She stated that her husband had always treated her with the utmost kindness and consideration, and could not possibly have been guilty of such an act, had his reason not been dethroned. Her husband's attack of insanity had been entirely unanticipated, he never having manifested any alarming symptom at any time. The night upon which the attack occurred her husband had complained of feeling unwell and had taken some medicine which had been prescribed for him. Twice during the night, she said, her husband got out of bed to renew the dose. At 3 o'clock in the morning he arose

AND, WITH A WILD SHRIEK,

rushed to the kitchen. Procuring a fork coated with rust, he returned to the bedroom and seized her by the neck, dragging her bodily out of bed. The scene that then transpired must certainly have been appalling, according to Mrs. Baker's statement. Putting his knee on her breast, he made several attempts to stab the poor woman through the heart. In this he was frustrated by Mrs. Baker following the motion with her eye and placing her hand right over the spot at which the blows were directed. The mood of the assassin then changed, and he confined his endeavors to with the terrible implement. In this he was also unsuccessful, as his blows were dodged to a certain extent. However, in sundry places on Mrs. Baker's face are left the ragged wounds inflicted by the fork, disfiguring her for life. For brief interludes during the time that Baker was attempting to consummate his murderous designs, a ray of reason would break through his beclouded mind and seemingly recognizing the fact that his mind was under the influence of some fearful agency, he would shriek to his wife to save herself while there was yet time, as he was crazy and conscious of it. This return to partial reason would be but transitory, and with a wild curse the darkness would return, and redoubled blows and violence would be the result. Twice did he realize his position, and, while clinging to his wife like a scared child, thereby not giving her an opportunity to escape, she would beg her to break away from him and take the children, of whom there are several, where he could not reach them. At the cessation of his last lucid interval,

HIS MADNESS ASSUMED A MOST FRENZIED FORM,

and, had it not been for the timely intercession of the neighbors Mrs. Baker would doubtless have lost her life, and the children followed the same fate. Baker, who is a hard working man, careful for the welfare of his family, as his neat home will attest, has the sympathy of the entire neighborhood. Mrs. Baker is receiving the attention of her neighbors and is in a fair way to recover. The probable cause of Baker's derangement can be attributed to a blow he received about a year ago over the head with a bar of heavy iron, at the hands of Pete Connely, of Kerry Patch. Dr. O'Reilly, his family physician, expresses hopes of his ultimate recovery.

SKILLFULLY REPAIRED

By the best workmen in the West. It is important that a GOOD Watch should be carefully repaired. We offer you the best work and at the most Reasonable Prices.

☞ IMPORTANT---The market at the present time is full of Gold Cases that are stamped and purport to be of much finer quality of gold than they really are, as, for instance, 4 and 6 kt. gold is stamped and sold as 8 and 10 kt., and 10 and 14 kt. gold is stamped and sold as 14 and 18 kt. gold, and there are even much more debasing frauds practiced than these, but we can not specify them here. Beware of buying Gold Watches that are stamped simply 14 and 18 kt., unless some responsible firm name is attached as a guarantee of its quality.

REMEMBER that every Gold and Silver Watch sold by Mermod, Jaccard & Co., Fourth and Locust streets, is the EXACT QUALITY that it is REPRESENTED to be. Also,

REMEMBER that you can ORDER or BUY from Mermod, Jaccard & Co., 4th and Locust, in PERFECT confidence, as they have but ONE price, which is marked in PLAIN figures upon each article.

COUP'S CIRCUS.

W. C. Coup's Circus and Menagerie opened to crowded houses last night. The show is the most complete on the road. It differs from that given by Mr. Coup last season in this, that the three-ring system has been abandoned and that the several shows are consolidated and given in one arena. The menagerie feature is well looked after. The collection of animals of all kinds is very large and well selected, containing several rare specimens never seen here before. The Garfield Assassination tableaux, presented at a cost of $20,000, is a principal feature. The figure of Guiteau, dressed in the suit of clothes which he wore on the day of Garfield's murder, was surrounded by crowds all night, and women and children shrank from the realistic appearance of the murderer. The arenic performance was a complete success. It began with a grand cavalcade, followed by the wild Zulus in their native war songs, dances, assegai throwing and other savage pastimes. This was followed by a thrilling cannon ball act by Mons. Drayton, and a principal horse act by Wm. O'Dell. Louise Boshelle's slack-wire performance, while blindfolded at an elevation of twenty feet from the ground, excited great wonder. The bareback riding of Frank Melville, who ranks with James Robinson and Chas. Fish as the champion of the world, is well worth the whole price of admission. Melville, as a bareback and jockey rider, is now acknowledged as at the head of his business in America. The aerial performances are numerous and interesting. Senor Rumnells is shot from a sea-coast mortar, and, after a thrilling flight through the air, is caught by Eddie Snow, who is suspended under the canvas dome from a trapeze. Mlle. Zaco dives headlong from an altitude of 100 feet and is caught in a net, a most hazardous feat. Snow is also thrown from a Roman catapult half way across the tent, alighting safely after several somersaults. The performing dogs and horses are better than anything of the kind in the land. The circus has two clowns, Snow and Halloway. Two performances will be given to-day at the circus lot, corner of Nineteenth and Pine streets, at 2 and 8 p. m.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Hyde and Behman's Star Specialty Company are deservedly drawing fine houses at the People's. Their entertainment is varied, and embraces features of a most attractive nature.

The success predicted for "The Danicheffs" has been realized. The harmonious action of the entire cast enables the company to present in a satisfactory manner a play that under these essential conditions is highly fascinating and commands the interest of the spectators. The cast last night was the same as the night before, and "The Danicheffs" will remain on the boards until Thursday night, when "Led Astray" will be given for the balance of the engagement.

"Rooms for Rent" was the attraction at the Grand last night, to which event was attached more than ordinary local importance, the occasion, as it was, being received as the benefit of Treasurer George McManus. In this an opportunity presented itself to the many friends of the gentleman to manifest their appreciation of his innumerable courtesies. A crowded house witnessed the presentation, and, given by the original cast, it was highly satisfactory. At the close of the third act Mr. John Norton emerged upon the stage from one side, and in response to the vociferous demands of the audience Mr. McManus joined him from the opposite side. A check for $525, accompanied by an appropriate address, was tendered to Mr. McManus, who in a few earnest words acknowledged his gratitude. The applause that followed was deafening and Mr. McManus, bowing his thanks, retired.

INTEMPERATE LANGUAGE.

Judge Clover Reprimanded by the Court for Using It.

At a late hour last evening Judge Adams heard argument upon a motion for change of venue entered by William A. and Edmond A. B. Garesche, in behalf of John R. Picton, in the Valle-Picton suit. The argument was brought to an abrupt conclusion by order of the court, a warmth of words between counsel threatening a belligerent attitude. Judge Clover took exception to a remark from the lips of Mr. William A. Garesche, and was preparing to reply to it, asking if the allusion was intended for him, but the court extinguished all further colloquy by a prompt order for adjournment. This morning at the motion hour Judge Adams announced that he was at first disposed to facilitate a speedy disposition of the Valle-Picton suit, a delay having occurred in another division of the court, whence the Judge had transferred the case on account of family connections. Owing, however, to the "intemperate language indulged in yesterday morning by counsel for Mrs. Valle, the plaintiff, Henry A. Clover, the court was now disposed to let the case take its reugular course on the docket," and the motion for judgment, notwithstanding the answer, would be entered on the motion docket. The motion entered by the defendant for change of venue had likewise been duly considered by the court and would be overruled.

MONEY.

Wall Street Gossip.

NEW YORK, May 2, 11 A. M.—Wheat fairly active and rather easier; prices without marked change. Stocks opened strong, except Lake Shore, Northwest and Wabash, which declined only a fraction. New York Central advanced ¼. Chicago and Alton and Michigan Central advanced a fraction.

Quotations of Money, Silver, Bonds, Stocks and Other Securities.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Money 3; prime mercantile 5@6¾; bar silver 114¾. Exchange steady at 87 long, 89¾ sight. Governments firm and higher for some. States dull. Railroads irregular. Stocks—After 11 o'clock advanced ¾@¾, latter Alton and Terre Haute preferred. Market continued to advance, with occasional reactions until noon, Western Union, Lake Shore, New York Central and Missouri Pacific most conspicuous. Bulls claim that great operators are picking up stocks. The position of the bear party appears unchanged. The latest rumor is that Vanderbilt will make a very brief stay abroad. Southern Pacific is being raided again to-day by clique brokers. It is said that Prot. Treadwell has gone to London and that officers of the company are getting hold of the stock, but their manipulations are severely censured. Some gold is said to have been engaged for steamers sailing before Saturday. Western Union earnings increased steadily during April. A large block of Mutual Union bonds sold yesterday at 78¾ ex May coupon. Sixes extended 101¾; 5s 102; 4½s 116. 4s 121; Pacific 6s '95 132.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

A sample of new wheat from Georgia was exhibited to-day by Massengale Bros., who had received it from Harrold, Johnson & Co., of Americus, Ga. The wheat was white and plump and almost dry, of a variety known as the "rattley wheat." It was raised on S. W. Small & Bros.' plantation, Sumpter county, Ga., on orchard land that has not will produce rice, and some grains of rice were mixed in the sample, having grown and been cut with the wheat. The wheat will average twenty bushels to the acre. Samples of California wheat and standard flour were received by J. F. Morgan from San Francisco to day and shown by him to city millers in the way of business. It is hoped to build up a trade with California and this market.—The stock of wheat in Chicago to-day is 3,485,239 bu, a decrease of 109,000 bu; of corn 1,618,334 bu—200,000 bu decrease; of oats 68,676 bu, or 56,000 smaller than last week.

A telegram was received by S. W. Cobb & Co., from Newport, Ark., offering for immediate shipment four cars new wheat, grading No. 2.

Corn was higher and ruled strong, with an unsupplied demand for future, which closed ¼c higher for May and year, ⅜c for June, 11-16c for July, ½c for August and ⅜c for September and October. Grades in active order demand, besides a milling and speculative inquiry. Oats advanced and were firm; cash grades sold to order buyers. Rye dull. Barley unchanged. Hay dull and weaker. Millfeed declined and was dull. Provisions firm and higher, with a continued active demand for meats. A Reliable Firm.

In to-day's POST-DISPATCH will be found the card of Messrs. John Wahl & Co., commission merchants, and one of the oldest, best known and most reliable houses in this line of business in the city. The firm has been established for many years in this market and during that time has built up an extensive and flourishing business that has put them prominently in the front rank of commercial circles. They do not rely upon option trading (that speculative fungus that has developed so rankly in the grain markets of this country) for a cheap but impleasant means of obtaining custom, but have always refused that particular branch of business, as they will also in the future. Their business is strictly a legitimate commission business, receiving and selling the actual product of the country, and of this they command a large share of all the grain and other produce that comes to this market. For the handling of their immense business this firm has an elevator of sufficient capacity, to the Exchange, to which also Mr. John Wahl gives his own personal attention. In addition to the regular grain trade, Messrs. John Wahl & Co. are leading dealers in seed and notices as being one of the largest receivers of this commodity in the market.

Stock and feeding steers steady and unchanged, and the same can be said of milch cows with calves. Ruling quotations firm. Mr. J. D. PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

Full Proceedings of the Board at To-Day's Session.

The board met at 10½ o'clock this morning. The Secretary read the resolution of the House of Delegates requesting the board to cause Florissant and Broad avenues to be partially improved from Grand avenue to the cemeteries, in order to enable people in the western portion of the city to reach the cemeteries from these avenues at all times. The communication was ordered filed. The communication of Mr. Edw. Mallinckrodt, proprietor of the North St. Louis Chemical Works, requesting the board to vacate Main street from Mallinckrodt street to Salisbury street was read, and the Secretary was instructed to notify the writer that it was the desire of the board that such a measure should originate in the Municipal Assembly rather than in the Board of Public Improvements. The Water Commissioner submitted the following report in relation to the laying of water pipes during the coming season. First—Mains required where the streets are under contract to be improved: Russell avenue from Compton to Grand avenue; Harper street from Grand to Glasgow avenue; Hogan avenue from Grand to Vandeventer avenue; Spring avenue from Cass to Easton avenue. Second—Streets requiring pipes to be laid in them before reconstruction of pavements and to provide water in case of fire: Commercial alley, from Myrtle to Walnut street, and from Market street to Washington avenue; Second street from Carr to Bates street; Collins street from Cherry to Bates street; Third street and Broadway from Washington avenue to Carr street, Fourth street from Chouteau avenue to Morgan street; St. Charles street from Tenth to Eleventh street; Eleventh street from Market street to Washington avenue; St. Charles street from Twelfth to Fourteenth street; Thirteenth street from Locust street to Washington avenue. These pipes are absolutely required for the purposes stated. In addition to the above the Commissioner recommends that water pipe be laid as called for by petitions Nos. 1390, 1433, 1414, 1289, 1288, 1378, 1261, 1422, 1422 1535, 1291, 1368, 1359, 1295, 1269, 1376, 1376, 1389, 1367, and in Manchester road from present terminus 600 feet west; Lucky street from Grand to Spring avenue; Barton street from Grand to Spring avenue, Sarpy avenue from Manchester road to Rock Spring School; Iowa avenue from Keokuk to Osage street; Evans avenue from Grand avenue to Francis street; Bates street from Main to Jackson street (Carondelet), and also as petitioned for by petitions Nos. 1343, 1327, 1273 and 1355. The communication was referred to the Committee on Water-works. On motion of the Harbor and Wharf Commissioner the matter of reconstructing with granite so much of the upper or western plane of the wharf between Mulberry street and Chouteau avenue as lies between the curb line and the levee track of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad Company was referred to the Committe on Harbor and Wharf with instructions to report by ordinance or otherwise. The Committee on Work-house submitted the result of their regular monthly visit for April on the 28th ult. The committee are of opinion that the quantity of finished brushes found stored in the back room of the building for female inmates is entirely too great, as well as those in a nearly finished state found in the various working cells. There is no reason why the brushes should not be finished and then removed from the institution more rapidly than has heretofore been the custom. The Committee on Streets and Alleys submitted draughts of the following ordinances: To establish and open Oregon avenue from Missouri street to the south line of United States Survey No. 72 965. To establish and open Pendleton avenue from Bell avenue to the north line of the Bequette tract. To establish and open Twenty-sixth street from the south line of Benoist and Ewing's addition to Dickson street, to establish and open two alleys in city block 1880. To establish and open North Market street from the east line of the Papin tract to Marcus avenue. To establish and open an alley in block No 1840. The President was instructed to forward the foregoing and all other ordinances now held by the Board to the Municipal Assembly at once. The ordinance referred to as still on the hands of the board are the following: To establish and open an alley in city block No. 1961; to establish and open Wisconsin avenue from Miami street to Chippewa street; to establish and open an alley in city block No. 24; to establish and open Vandeventer avenue from Victoria avenue to Easton avenue; to vacate alley in block 1717, east; to establish and open Missouri avenue between Miami street and Carondelet avenue; to widen Ware avenue between the south line of the Bequette tract and the south line of proposed Bell avenue.

The Committee on Sewers submitted draughts of the following ordinances: To establish South Trudeau street sewer district No 15, and to provide for the construction of a sewer therein; estimated cost $2,160. To establish Barton street sewer district No. 9 and to provide for the construction of a sewer therein; estimated cost $3,100. To establish Potomac street sewer district number 2 and to provide for the construction of a sewer therein; estimated cost $1,000. To establish Lafayette avenue sewer district number 5 and to provide for the construction of a sewer therein; estimated cost $5,500.

On motion of President Flad, the Committee on Improvement of Streets and Alleys were instructed to report at the next regular meeting all ordinances for reconstruction heretofore ordered by the board.

VALLE VS. PICTON.

The Deposition Mill Started—Jesse L. January Examined.

The taking of depositions for the defendant in the damage suit of Mrs. Isabella Valle vs. John R. Picton was begun before Notary Morrison Renshaw at the office of Messrs. E. A. B. and W. A. Garesche, No. 517½ Pine street.

In answer to interrogatories, Mr. January stated he was a son-in-law of Mrs. Isabella H. Valle; knows both parties to this suit; first met Mr. Picton in 1870; has known Zoe Valle, the divorced wife of John R. Picton, since 1865 or 1866. Witness declined to answer when and where he last saw Zoe Valle; declined to answer whether or not he was advised by an attorney in the matter. Declined to say when he saw Zoe Valle last. Witness was present during the trial of the divorce proceedings instituted by Zoe Valle against her husband, John R Picton. Declined to say whether he was aware of the circumstances under which the divorce was obtained. Witness reiterated his declination to answer whether he had had any advice from Judge Clark to decline to answer. The witness bids fair to be a very troublesome one.

The Broom Drill.

The following letter explains itself:

CAPT. WINTER, commanding battery—Finding that a "broom drill" is patentable under the rules made for the "Historical Encampment," and that the Irish Tent, representing your company, has precedence under that patent, we have decided to withdraw our young ladies from the field, being unwilling to disturb the harmonious feeling existing between the battery and Company E. With best wishes for your success,

MRS. GEORGE A. HAYWARD,
Commanding Company E and Russian Department.
Tuesday, May 2, 1882.

Pleading Before a Justice.

Judge Lewis in the case of Henry Strathman against August Gorla filed a dissenting opinion to-day from that of the other judges which affirmed the judgment. The presiding judge thinks that every statement filed for suit before a justice of the peace shall be, either by direct expression or by implication in what is expressed, a statement of the facts constituting the cause of action.

Kennett Examined.

Depositions were taken in the case of Lehndorf against Circuit Attorney Harris in Mr. Slayback's office, beginning at 3 p. m. Chief Keaney and Sergeant Clark were examined. Little of importance was developed.

Shot Dead by a Negro.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., May 2.—A special says: Last night Huston Whiting, a negro, asked T. S. Greaves, white, to take a drink. The latter refused, whereupon the negro drew a revolver and shot Greaves dead. A posse is in pursuit of the murderer. There are threats of lynching. Whiting dangerously stabbed a negro woman of Gallipolis, Ohio, a short time ago, and went to Charlestown to avoid arrest.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

Wedding of Mr Charles T. Shewell and Miss Cora Libby This Evening.

At 8:30 p. m. Mr. Charles T. Shewell will be married to Miss Cora Libby, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Libby, of 2644 Washington avenue. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. Snyder, of the Church of the Messiah, in the presence of the relatives and intimate friends. The bridesmaids are Miss Julia Chase, of Tower Bluff, and Miss Carrie Wilkerson. The groomsmen are Mr. Peter Nicholson and Dr. Mathiason.

The bride, a handsome brunette, will wear a dress of white India mull, made en traine, finished with a number of tiny ruffles, the tablier composed entirely of ruffles of Irish point; corsage cut square and finished with Irish point, the sleeves made entirely of the same; a sash of suran will confine the draperies of the skirt; tulle veil confined to the hair with natural flowers, tea roses. She will carry a fan composed of the same fragrant blossoms; her solitaire earrings are the gift of the groom, and the pin—a pond lily with a diamond dewdrop in the center—is the gift of her mother.

Miss Julia Chase, the first bridesmaid, will wear white mull, dancing length, trimmed with pleatings of the same edged with lace, panniers bouffant, confined by heliotrope sash of moire, corsage en V, filled with lace; garniture of heliotropes and pansies, corresponding fan of the same flowers; gloves of the same shade.

The second bridesmaid, Miss Carrie Wilkerson, will wear mull, made short and trimmed with ruffles of Irish point, surplice waist and demi-sleeves made of the point; garniture of scarlet flowers, fan to correspond; sash of scarlet moire will confine the bouffant draperies of the panniers.

The house has been decorated with flowers; smilax wreaths the chandeliers and fringes the curtains; plants and cut flowers are disposed in groups in the most effective style. The supper will be served by Peckman. A great many presents have been received by the bride, among others a handsome piano, the gift of her father. For the present the bridal couple will remain with her parents; later in the season they will visit his parents in Philadelphia.

CHASE & CABOT.

The Well Known Dry Goods House About to Go Out of Business.

The contemplated closing of the wholesale dry goods house of Chase & Cabot was the subject of much conversation in business circles to-day. The house is old and well known. The firm name was originally Pomeroy & Co., and was established in 1844. The firm name was changed several times since that date, and became Chase & Cabot twelve years ago.

The step has been taken, not as the result of any financial embarrassment or business difficulties, but simply out of a desire of the gentlemen interested to withdraw from business. This step was taken on account of the continued ill health of Mr. C. Cabot, the senior general partner, and Wm. H. Benton, the special partner.

The remaining partner, Mr. Geo. H. Chase, was also desirous to withdraw, and a proposition

WHERE TO BUILD.

A number of real estate agents have recently called the attention of this company to the large demand which they were unable to supply for small and medium-sized dwelling houses along the line of our road, and near its terminus. The opportunity offered to build houses for rent or obtain a good home at a low price is a rare one. There is no city in the United States, or, perhaps, in the world, with a population as large as ours, wherein desirable building lots so near the business center can be bought at so low a price as $10 to $20 per front foot. The locality is high and healthy; the drainage is good; the facilities for reaching all portions of the city are perfect.

The Company start 264 cars from each end of their line between 5:30 a. m. and midnight, while the special facilities for the summer months' travel are highly prized by all who have enjoyed them, and the proximity of Hyde Park, Fair Grounds Park and O'Fallon Park are well worthy ot consideration.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

John Roberts was arraigned before 'Squire Eggman on a charge of grand larceny and bound over for the grand jury in the sum of $200. He was taken to Belleville for safe-keeping.

J. A. Murphy was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn out by Hutchinson, charging him with disturbing the peace and carrying concealed weapons. The parties to the suit are all residents of East Carondelet. Last Christmas Murphy flourished his revolver and threatened to shoot every one in the neighborhood. Murphy then disappeared and did not return till a few days ago. He pleaded guilty in 'Squire Draggon's court this morning and paid $8 and costs.

About noon yesterday 'Squires Draggon, Lynn and Graney, M. F. Tissier and a few others started for Canteen on a fishing excursion. Arriving at their destination, 'Squire Draggon and M. F. Tissier chartered a boat and rowed to the center of the lake, where, from mismanagement or some other reason, the boat capsized, precipitating the occupants into the lake. 'Squire Draggon clung to the side of the boat, but Mr. Tissier, dazed by his sudden immersion, attempted to swim to the opposite shore. Unfortunately his fishing tackle became entangled about his person and also to the boat, rendering his desperate efforts at self preservation futile. The remaining members of the party secured boats and rescued the thoroughly exhausted editor from his perilous position. The remainder of the evening was spent in restoring the unfortunate fishermen and drying their clothing, when the party availed themselves of nightfall to return home unseen.

STARTLING, BUT TRUE.

Undoubted Facts Proving That Frank James Called on His Sister-in-Law at the Southern and Escorted Her to the Depot.

How Frank James is a Traveling Salesman and Lives Openly in Cities—Truthful Revelations Concerning the Outlaw—The Man Who Enlisted Frank in the Quantrell Gang.

Special from Our Staff Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., May 1.—The westward bound passenger train last night conveyed to Kansas City the widow of Jesse James, with the mysterious lady and attorney that accompanied her to St. Louis. What feelings possessed Mrs. James as the train rounded the overhanging bluffs beside the Executive Mansion can only be conjectured; but certain it is that her wifely fidelity to the freebooter has rendered her an object of considerable sympathy and commiseration, and she can scarcely be blamed for any exhibition of bitterness toward those who deprived her of the father of her children. There is quite a difference between an official and a personal opinion, and the outside world would be somewhat surprised to hear the individual sentiment of the Legislature concerning the manner by which Jesse James came to his death. The result appears to be unanimously acquiesced in, but it is an open matter of regret that the forms of law were so generally disregarded in the attempt to end his peculiar career.

The honest seeker after information sometimes encounters "a concatination of fortuitous circumstances," as I chanced upon in connection with the visit of the Jameses to St. Louis. Late Saturday afternoon a middle-aged gentleman appeared on the parlor floor of the Southern Hotel, St. Louis, having gained admission thereto by means of the ladies' entrance. He was clad in a spring suit of very light clothing, with a low-crowned slouch hat, and altogether presented a very tasteful appearance. His facial expression was startlingly like the pictures of Frank James, as that worthy appeared in 1866. He had a thin, raw-boned, smooth face, a long, straight nose, large gray eyes and a muscular figure. On entering the grand parlor he was met by a bell-boy, of whom he inquired the number of the room occupied by Mrs. Jesse W. James. The boy replied that the gentleman should send up his card. The visitor hesitated a moment, then took a small card from his pocket and wrote thereon "Mr. James." The boy hurried up-stairs to the room and returned with the information that the gentleman should "walk up immediately." It was after dark when the gentleman left the hotel, reaching the street again by means of the ladies' entrance. In the face of these incidents, of which I have personal knowledge, added to the fact that Frank James was to meet Mrs. Jesse James in St. Louis and look over the proof-sheets of their forthcoming book, it is not surprising that people should suspect that Frank James has been in St. Louis recently. To add to these circumstances I had scarcely seated myself in a chair car at the Union Depot last Sunday night, when F. J. Haire entered, followed by Mrs. Jesse James, "Miss Blake, of Detroit," and the individual man who called at the Southern Hotel the previous afternoon, and he carried in his arms

THE LITTLE DAUGHTER OF MRS. JAMES.

Following came a gentlemen well known in journalistic circles, and who is generally considered as the personal friend of the James brothers, with whom he "soldiered" during the last year of the war. Mr. Haire recognized me, spoke politely and passed on, but the remainder of the party made exertions to avoid any recognition. The party passed through into the sleeping car, and a moment thereafter the gentleman who had carried Mrs. James' little girl disappeared from the train and the depot, while the journalist referred to was found in the front car, bound for Kansas City. In this same connection it may be stated that the Sedalia Democrat of Sunday morning last reproduces an interview had by a reporter with Charles McBride, of Kansas City, whose wife is a sister of Mrs. Jesse James. In that interview Mr. McBride declares that "Frank James does not live in caves and wild places, but openly transacts business in the large cities, and is more likely to be found in the Southern Hotel, at St. Louis, than on the plains of Texas or the mountains of Tennessee."

Mr. McBride further declares that Frank James dresses like a traveling salesman, and is really engaged in a wholesale trade. Maj. Edwards, in reproducing the interview, editorially says it is the first truthful account of Frank James' habits of life he has discovered in any of the newspapers, and that Mr. McBride has related the simple facts, having no desire whatever to shield the Jameses from the consequences of their crimes. Now, as that Frank James whom I encountered on the two occasions named?

The westward-bound train of Sunday night had not reached a distance of ten miles from St. Louis when Mr. Haire, attorney of the Jameses, came walking slowly through the train, but I had abandoned my position in the chair-car and gone forward. When he reached my locality, he sat down beside me and said:

"Going to see the James business clear through, are you?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"Going to Kansas City, I presume?"

"Why do you ask?"

"Because I thought you might be following up the trail of the mysterious lady; but I can tell you now you might as well abandon the project. The lady does not care to reveal her identity."

"When will the James book be published?"

"It is difficult to say now, because Mrs. James has had a disagreement with Mr. Chambers, her publisher. I believe that he did not act fairly, and on Saturday night he refused to see either Mrs. James or myself."

"Will Mr. Chambers go ahead and publish the information already obtained?"

"Very likely he will undertake to do so, but I think an injunction can be obtained, as he has undoubtedly violated his contract. There, now, I must go. Good night."

On account of the crowded condition of the sleeping-cars the James party sat up all night in a Pullman section. The mysterious lady wore a Gainesborough hat and looked even lovelier than during her stay at the hotel. I did not succeed in solving that mystery, but I do believe that Frank James was at the Southern Hotel last Saturday afternoon and at the Union Depot Sunday night.

The Man Who Enlisted Frank James.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—I had a talk this afternoon with "Billy" Gaugh, one of the old Quantrell men, who is now living here in Kansas City and pursuing the vocation of teamster to a flouring mill. While waiting for the gentleman his employer invited me into the office, and offering me a cigar said: "Billy has worked for me for four years now, and any friend of his that calls to see him I like to treat nicely." By a little judicious questioning the employer learned the object of my visit and said: "You can't get Billy to tell anything about old days. He wouldn't even go up to St. Joe to identify Jesse's body. He won't talk on the subject even to me. He has settled down and is leading a quiet life, attending to his business, and never drinks, smokes or talks about the war. My partner, now, Mr. Trow, could tell you a great deal about Jesse if he was here. He went up to St. Joe to identify the body. One thing is certain, there is no doubt that Jesse is dead. This is Billy." Here a man apparently about 36 years of age, short, rather thick-set, with clear blue eyes and a weather-beaten complexion, entered the office.

"Mr. Gaugh, I want a little chat about old times and especially about Jesse James," I said.

"Well," he replied, "I am about through talking of Jesse. I suppose, if I had time, I could call up some interesting stories about him, but I don't think of anything just now. If you wanted to know something about his general character during the war I could probably tell you something."

"That's just what I want."

"Well, those boys, Frank and Jesse Jeems, were very quiet and orderly in camp always, and they were honest, too. I never knew 'em to do a dishonest act. They were brave and fearless, but not quarrelsome like some of the old gang. There were hardly any of the rest of us in the outfit but what had quarrels among ourselves and did more or less shooting, but I never knew them to have any trouble with any one in the outfit. I enlisted Frank James and armed him. I had been detailed with seven men to go up into Iowa on business, and only two of us came back; the others were killed. Well, I heard of Frank Jeems and that he was talking of going south, and I persuaded him to join us. I took him up into Iowa and he did pretty well in several little skirmishes we had up there; so we enlisted him into the command. He persuaded Jesse to join us after we came back from Iowa."

"Is is true that Jesse used to carry the scalps of men he had killed on his bridle-rein?"

"No; I think not. There was some of the gang—Archie Clements, Bill Anderson and some of them—who scalped their men, but I don't think those boys (the Jeemses) ever did that."

"Did Jesse drink much?"

"No; Jesse didn't. I don't think I ever saw Jesse drink anything. Frank did, though. In fact, Frank was full the day that I enlisted him. He used to get full once in a while and raise h—l around the camp. Jesse was a good man. By that I mean he did not swear, or raise h—ll, or drink. Frank was a pretty bad fellow though, especially when he'd get drunk. He could outswear any man in camp. They were both brave and fearless and made good men for our gang."

"Have you seen them since the war?"

"Yes, I've seen them since the war. I've seen several of the old gang since then right here in this city just to pass them and say how d'ye or perhaps exchange a few words."

"Did you see Jesse here during the time that he was living here last year?"

"Well, I don't know that I did. I frequently saw and talked with a man that I believed to be him, but whether it was or not I don't know. Now, I want to ask you a question. Is it true that stolen horses were found in Jesse's stable when he was killed? I just want to know whether it is true that Jesse had got down to horse-stealing?"

When assured that the two horses found there were identified by their rightful owners he said:

"Well, I can hardly believe it. Jesse nor Frank never did anything like that during the war. I never knew either of them to do a mean or dishonest act. Of course I don't know anything about them since the wah, but they would not hav' done it while they were with Quantrell."

"Which do you think had the most executive ability, Frank or Jesse?"

"Frank. I don't know how it may be now, but during the wah I should hav' thought if there was to be any question of who was to be the leader it would have been Frank. Well, I shall have to be excused now, as there's my load ready," and the ex-Quantrell man bowed himself out of the office.

FINE ART.

The Boyd Collection Opened at 314 N. Fifth Street.

A genuine treat for lovers of the fine arts has been provided by Dr. Boyd, in the exhibition of oil paintings at 314 N. Fifth street. The Doctor has made this collection, picture by picture, and but one or two of the canvases have ever been publicly exhibited or offered for sale before. The collection will be offered at auction on Thursday and Friday, May 4 and 5, at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m., and it certainly behoves the people of St. Louis to keep these art treasures in the city. One of the best paintings in the collection is "The Coming Storm," by Sanguinette. This has been engraved and the copies so widely spread that the people will at once recognize the original with its three almost living horses in the foreground, their manes blowing out in the breeze, and every attitude instinct with life.

"The Home of the Ute" is a magnificent landscape by Elkins, with that indescribable atmospheric purity about it which one only finds in Colorado scenery. The picture is a large one, but every detail is perfect. It was painted for a large hall, and it would grace the St. Louis Club's rooms perfectly.

There is a "Waterfall in Norway" which will attract the attention of every lover of art, not for the beauty of the canvas, but for its merit. Such water and such stones are feels exist really in nature. The distant snow-capped peaks stand out beautifully, and the whole painting is most creditable. "Up the Union of King's River, California," is one of Bierstadt's masterpieces. It has all of his peculiar charm and magnificent composition.

"The Gates Ajar" is one of Jerome Thompson's best works, and the warm tone of color in Elkin's "Echo Lake" must be studied to be appreciated.

Thomas Moran's "Indian Trail on Green River" is a wonderful painting. The cliffs in the southeast reflect all the warmth of the sunset on the river across which the Indians are traveling. The moon is rising in the east, and the whole picture is one to be remembered. The catalogue, however, tells its own story. When there are such great names as Leonardo da Vinci, de Haas, Suntag, Ream and Rupert, one can imagine what the collection must be.

Child Abandonment.

On Friday last a man arrived in the city, landing at the Union Depot. He went over to the Grand Central Hotel across the street from the depot and registered his name as William Anderson. When he came there he had a small, sickly baby about ten months or a year old in his arms. He requested a room and also an attendant for the baby. Both were furnished and he left the house, as he stated, on business in the city. That was on Friday afternoon, and he has not since shown up. It is evidently a case of abandonment.

THE ARMORY FETE.

Italian Tent—The Broom Drill—The Irish Encampment—Other Details.

There has been some misunderstanding in regard to the patent upon drills, and there have been two brigades in active preparation for the coming encampment. The "Broom Brigade," under command of Lieut. Skipwith, of battery A, Light Artillery, Mrs. J. H. Carroll in command, and another company practicing the fan drill under command of Capt. Wm. Bull, of Company C, in command of Mrs. G. W. Hayward.

Mrs. Carroll claimed the patent upon all young ladies' drills, and the matter has finally been unanimously decided in favor of Mrs. Carroll, as the following note will show:

"Mrs. J. W. Carroll, Captain of the Tent representing Ireland, under charge of the Battery, has been granted a patent for the monopoly of all young ladies' drills at the Historical Encampment.

Given under Rule 3, adopted at the general meeting of April 11.

MRS. MILES SELLS,
Secretary of Historical Encampment."

If this matter had been settled sooner, she could have made definite arrangements with the other parties in regard to the drill already prepared.

A "Subscriber," through the POST DISPATCH, inquires what will be the "properties" used by the gods and goddesses in the Greek department. A thorough knowledge of all these matters can be obtained next week by applying to Mount Olympus.

Mr. Eisenstadt, of Company H, presented to the Grecian Tent a gold-headed cane, to be voted to the most popular man of Company H.

One of the attractions of the Greek Tent will be a performance upon the zither, the nearest approach to the musical instruments of that day, by Mr. Buchroeder, a very skillful performer.

The public may feel assured that every attraction of the Grecian Tent will be presented in a manner that will no offend the most fastidious taste.

The American Tent have offered the use of their stage to the commander of the forces of Ireland during the encampment. Their "Broom drill" will be executed there, and they will also present two tableaux. Ireland in her glory will be represented by the "Crowning of Erin;" the other picture will represent the "Coronation of Brian Boroihme," King of Ireland, and afterwards a camp scene, his assassination in his tent.

The Italian tent is under the command of Mrs. T. G. Meier, assisted by Mrs. E. D. Meier, and will be decorated with the national colors, green, white and red, and will bear the coat of arms of the different Italian States. They have chosen a period embracing the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and will introduce the celebrities of that period, the characters having been assigned to the Misses Kribben, Carle, Fentress, Runyan, Luetjen, Helmers, Vail, Abend, Mitchell, Fife, Rammold, Mrs. Pitzman and Mrs. Comfort. The gentleman will be selected from the company D, Third Regiment.

An exquisite pair of hand-painted vases have been presented to company E by Mrs. Meriamer F. Taylor, the work of her own fair hands. They are delicately tinted blue, and over this ground is strewn carelessly sprays of apple blossoms and wild roses, with butterflys hovering over them. They are valued at $50, and will be raffled for.

Some of the Indian costumes that will be used in the American tent have been worn by bona fide Indians, and bear upon them the marks of blood that denote how many scalps have been taken.

Mr. Randolph Hutchinson will make an ideal Hiawatha. His magnificent proportions and manly carriage, and face void of hirsute adornment, will fill the pictured image in every maiden's mind who has read the poem.

THE LADIES' DRILL.

How it Breeds Trouble Among the Ladies—Feminine Pleasantries.

The ladies who are preparing for the Historical Encampment have not had all plain sailing. Even in so good a work differences will arise and little disputes are unavoidable. The ladies have organized themselves so strictly that everything is run on governmental principles. It is out of this very strictness that a couple of trifling misunderstandings have arisen. For instance, it is necessary that a patent should be taken out for every novelty of the encampment. The patent is a formidable looking document, bristling with red seals, and it must be signed by the President, Mrs. Morrison, and countersigned by Mrs. Sells, the secretary.

The first grew out of the subject of the newspaper to be published at the fair. One of them was to be issued from the Italian tent under the management of Mrs. Meier and Capt. Walbridge. The other was to have been edited by Mrs. John Carroll and to be issued from the tent of Ireland. Mrs. Meier was first in the field and obtained her patent. Mrs. Carroll also secured the consent of the president and had gone to considerable trouble, when the subject came up for discussion at a Saturday afternoon meeting not long ago. A majority of the ladies present claimed that one paper was enough, and that as Mrs. Meier and Capt. Walbridge were the pioneers in journalism they should have the preference. Mrs. Carroll stood her ground and maintained that she had the president's approval, and stated that she had already gone to considerable trouble in the venture. The debate grew very warm. Mrs. Carroll advanced an idea in the course of her argument which Mrs. Morrison pronounced contemptible. Several of the ladies, fearing a wrangle, left the hall. A motion was made that both papers be allowed to run, but this scheme was beaten by a vote of six to two, and Mr. Meier and Capt. Walbridge remained in possession of the field. Mrs. Carroll however, determined to even matters and has been watching an opportunity. She took out a patent for a drill, and taught by previous experience had it attested by the president and signed by the security in due form.

Their intention is to give the broom drill and she has selected a bevy of twenty of the most bewitching young ladies in the city. Soon she learned that Mrs. Hayward had gone into the drill business, the weapons of her corps to be fans. The second squad had been drilling daily, and had made much progress, when Mrs. Carroll complained to the committee of the infringement of her patent.

The Hayward Battalion claimed that as the weapons were different, the protest could not prevail, but Mrs. Carroll stoutly insisted that her patent covered all kinds of drills. The matter came up for adjudication yesterday afternoon, before a court martial, regularly called for the purpose. Several well known Captains of local companies were on hand to furnish advice as militia ex-officers. After a solemn and impressive session, the question was decided in favor of the appellant and general order No. 301 was promulgated to the effect that Mrs. Hayward's fair warriors should muster out of the service unless they obtained Mrs. Carroll's permission to continue their drills.

The latter is disposed to be merciful and to make any feasible arrangement under the circumstances. She says she only insisted because she had the first patent, and because the rules had been so tightly drawn upon her in the newspaper controversy. It is thought that the two battalions will come to a harmonious settlement and that all will be quiet in the camp before long.

The American Association.

This is the regular opening day for the American Association of base ball clubs, and the games to be arranged are as follows:

St. Louis Browns vs. Eclipse of Louisville, at St. Louis.

Pittsburg vs. Cincinnati, at Pittsburg.

Athletics vs. Baltimore, at Philadelphia.

The game at Sportsmen's Park attracts more attention than any game which has taken place thus far during the season. The most intense rivalry exists between the two teams and they are in prime condition. The Louisville club arrived this morning by the O. & M. and put up at the Lindell. They have their pitcher, Mullane, with them this trip, and they claim that he is equal to the best in the country. Sullivan will catch for them, Hecker and Pierce fill first and second base, the clipper Browning resuming his home position at third; Mack is at short field, Maskrey, Reccius and Wolf in the outfield. They are under the charge of Secretary Manager, Mr. Reccius, and are accompanied by several enthusiasts from Louisville. They will appear for the first time in their new uniforms.

The Browns will have out their regular team, with McGinnis and Sullivan as the battery, Comiskey, Smiley and Jack Gleason on bases, Will Gleason at short, and Cuthbert, Walker and Seward in the outfield. Game will be called at 4 o'clock. The Browns will also appear in their fine new uniforms—brown stockings, belts and caps, white shirts and knee-breeches. Postlewaite's Band in a chartol paraded the streets this morning with the announcement of the opening of the season, and will furnish a concert at the grounds before the game. Everything is suspicious for a fine opening of the season. To-morrow the second game will be played at the same place, and it is possible that the Browns change batters, Shappert and Fusselbach, will be in place.

PEARCE PLUCKED.

The Mental Anguish Occasioned by Not Hearing Fra Diavolo and Lucia.

Theaters Not a Necessity of Life—The Court of Appeals Decides the Opera Seat Suit.

The Court of Appeals this morning in an opinion by Judge Bakewell affirms the decision of the Circuit Court in the opera-seat case of Major Chas. E. Pearce against Manager Spalding, of the Olympic, and Col. J. H. Mapleson, of Her Majesty's Theater Company, London. The Circuit Court sustained a demurrer to the suit on the ground that there was no cause of action for damages. The facts of the suit are as follows:

Maj. Pearce presented himself at the Olympic box-office bright and early one morning to secure the first choice of seats for Her Majesty's Opera. The seat-diagram was pushed before him when the window-sash went up, and the Major, putting his finger upon four particular seats in the dress-circle, said that he wanted "those seats" and demanded them on the strength of being the first applicant at the window. The numbers in question had been scored off a few minutes before to supply the orders of regular patrons of the house telegraphed and written for ahead. He was offered otherwise, a clean sheet presenting seats equally desirable. The Major, however, contended that this was a breach of the advertised contract, and, putting his back, up remarked that

HE WOULD TEST THE MATTER IN THE COURTS.

He engaged W. H. H. Russell to conduct the suit, and the depositions of Cary, Campanini, Manager Madeson and others were taken for the gratification of the public. The Court of Appeals in its decision says: "The demurrer was properly sustained. The defendants advertised to sell reserved seats, but they did not advertise that the first applicant should have his choice of any seat in the parquette or dress circle at $3 for each entertainment; nor that he should have numbers 675, 677, 679 and 681, nor that he should have a license to use any seat during the performance for seven consecutive entertainments. By no fair construction can any such meaning be got out of the language of the advertisements. Suppose a man wishing to ruin the house or to forestal the entertainment or from any motive good or bad had tendered to the box-keeper the price of every seat in the parquette for every entertainment at $3 per seat, must he have accepted it? Why so?

THEATERS ARE NOT NECESSITIES OF LIFE,

and the proprietors of them may manage their business in their own way. If that way is unpopular or unfair they will suffer in diminished receipts. But suppose the defendants had offered to plaintiff in express terms his choice of seats provided he were at the box office at 9 o'clock on the 7th of February, 1881, and by extraordinary exertions he had got there at that hour and the defendants out of mere caprice had determined to close the house or to hold a prayer meeting it during the week advertised for the opera, to what damages would plaintiff have been entitled for the false representation? Clearly he would have been entitled to no damages except for loss that could be estimated by a money standard. He might recover perhaps for loss of time and for car hire. He could recover nothing, we think, occasioned by not hearing 'Fra Diavalo' or, Lucia, any more than he could have recovered for any agonies that he might publicly have endured had he been present at the opera and had the music been so excruciatingly bad that any intervals of silence would have come like so many poultices to heal the wounds of sound. It has been held indeed that where any one who has actually purchased his ticket to the theater, no matter what his musical tastes may be or what delight he may anticipate, is prevented from entering by the management, with no rudeness or unnecessary force, he can not maintain an action of tort for the execution. His recovery is upon the contract, and the measure of damages is the money paid for the ticket and actual legal damages sustained by breach of contract."

FOR THE MENTAL ANGUISH

A Fine Autotype Collection.

The autotype display at Pettes & Leathe's, 810 Olive street, is deservedly attracting the attention of connoisseurs and lovers of art. It is unnecessary to enlarge on the merits of these works. What renders them chiefly valuable is that they are the reproductions of art, absolutely faithful to the original in every detail and afford the student of art and other persons of taste a better opportunity to study the great masters than even the hurried inspection which the tourist can give them in foreign countries. Among the most attractive pictures on exhibition is a copy of Munkacsy's "Christ Before Pilate," the most notable work of the last year's Salon, and one of the most notable of the century. The New York Herald is authority for the statement that the Emperor of Russia has purchased the original lately. Only 300 copies were struck off by the autotypers in Europe before the sale was consummated. The copy on exhibition at Pettes & Leathe's is the only one that has found its way to America.
